Survey Shows Gains May Not Be Sufficient

Republicans' Drive
Tightens Key Races
All Across Country

Editor's Note—Tomorrow the voters will decide whether the Eisenhower administration is to have a Republican or a Democratic controlled Congress during the next two years.

For the past several weeks The Associated Press has had five of its top political writers probing sentiment in all parts of the country. They have reported their findings from more than a score of states and then summarized their own observations, plus late-hour developments, in a series of regional stories.

Today these reporters—Jack Bell, Douglas B. Cornell, Morris Landberg, Reiman Morin and Don Whitehead—made a last-minute check by telephone and telegraph on their spot surveys. With the assistance of AP bureaus, here is what they report:

[By The Associated Press]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—President Eisenhower and other Republican campaigners apparently have sparked the GOP into an eleventh hour political spurt.

It could succeed. But it may not be strong enough to overcome a seeming Democratic lead in the great battle for control of Congress in Tuesday's election.

In the campaign windup, Eisenhower and his political lieutenants have been able to sell their peace and communism issues better than the idea that the President has to have a Republican Congress. Democrats still expect to cash in on unemployment and lower farm incomes.

That's the outlook now, two days before the balloting, on the basis of spot checks today by Associated Press reporters in the field and on the telephone.

Usual Off-Year Trend

With the promised vote of Independent Wayne Morse of Oregon, the Democrats need a net gain of only two seats to control the Senate in the 84th Congress. They can take over the House with a gain of three seats. And the pattern for half a century usually has been for the party in power to lose House and Senate strength in a nonpresidential election year.

There still are signs that the usual off-year trend may be in the cards.

While the real answer to what is happening in the final skirmishing along the political firing lines will appear only in the ballot boxes Tuesday, even some Democratic leaders at various points around the country concede the GOP has made last minute headway.

Whether or not it has changed the actual complexion of election contests, the evident Republican splurge at least appears to have strengthened GOP chances further in states where the party was ahead and closed some of the gaps in areas in which the Republicans were considered trailing.

In some places, it seems to have

Pravda Thinks Demos Will Win U.S. Elections

MOSCOW, Oct. 31 (AP)—Pravda thinks the Democrats are going to win Tuesday's congressional elections in the United States. But it says a plague on both your parties.

The Communist party organ, in a lengthy Sunday article, said the people are revolting against the Republicans because of "the aggressive foreign policy, the growing economic crisis, high prices, high taxes, police terror, etc."

The Democrats are likely to win, in Pravda's view, but "what's the difference since all American politicians bear the same stamp of big business."

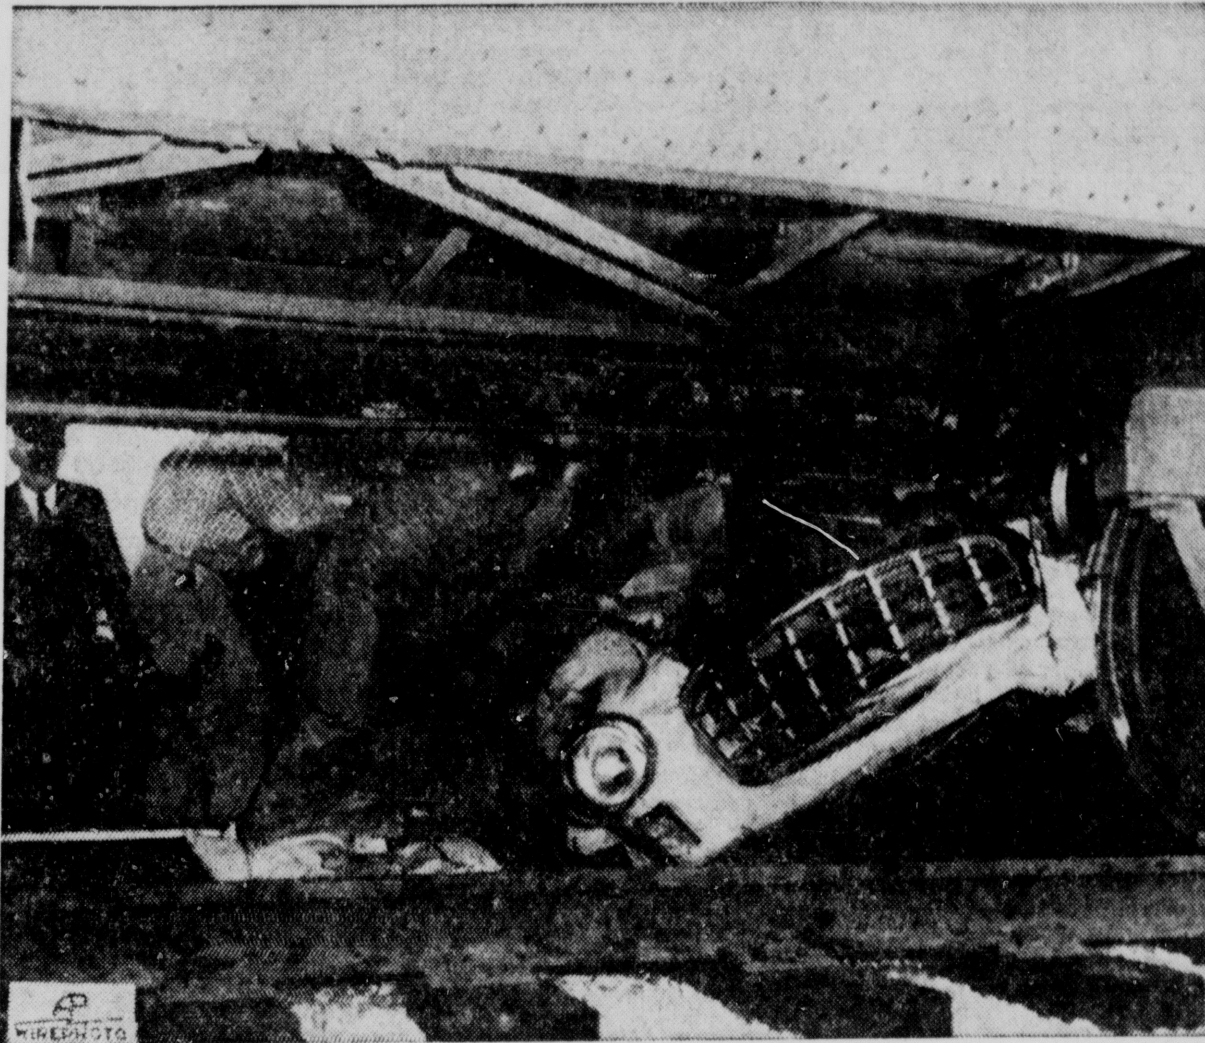

Eisenhowers Hear Minister Pray For Election Guidance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—The President and Mrs. Eisenhower today attended services at St. John's Episcopal Church and heard a minister pray for God's guidance in the coming election, and assert the need for religion in politics, education and science.

Dr. Charles W. Lowry, chairman of the Foundation for Religious Action in the Social and Civil Order, occupied the pulpit as a guest speaker.

Asking for God's guidance in next week's election, he offered a prayer:

"Almighty God, the source of all wisdom: Direct, we beseech thee, the minds of those now called to elect fit persons to serve in the Congress of the United States; that they may have regard to thy

Senate Monopoly Probers To Seek $1,000,000 Fund

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Two members of the Senate Antimonopoly subcommittee said today they will ask Congress for a million dollar appropriation next year to carry on the group's work.

Chairman Langer (R-ND) and Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said in a joint statement that "we need the funds with which to assemble a staff of experts and undertake a relentless job of inquiry, evaluation and recommendation."

Probe Dixon-Yates Pact

The two have been conducting public hearings into the proposed Dixon-Yates private power contract, which both oppose. But they said that is only one phase of the intensive overall study of "the giant problem" of monopolistic practices and effects which they propose to study.

Langer has protested several times that the last Congress failed to appropriate any funds for work of the subcommittee. The work has been carried on with other funds and facilities available to Langer, who is chairman also of the Senate Judiciary Committee of which the subcommittee is a part.

Would Replace TVA Power

The proposed Dixon-Yates power contract, which would be signed by the Atomic Energy Commission with two utility companies headed by Edgar H. Dixon and E. A. Yates, would provide privately produced power for transmission over Tennessee Valley Authority lines to serve the Memphis, Tenn., area.

It would replace power which the TVA now furnishes to the AEC for atomic installations in that general area.

During the subcommittee's hearings, witnesses have criticized the control which they said Dixon's firm, Middle South Utilities, Inc., exercises over subsidiaries in Mississippi and Arkansas.

Demos Begin Post Card Music Drive

MONETT, Mo., Oct. 31 (AP)—Local Democrats, not wanting to be outdone by President Eisenhower's chain telephone campaign to get out the vote for Tuesday's election, have started a post card drive for election-day music.

Radio Station KRMO said it has received more than 100 cards requesting the broadcast of two songs tomorrow and early Tuesday morning. Monett's population is about 5,000.

The songs Democrats say they want to hear?

Adenauer Cuts U.S. Visit Short

MITCHEL AIR FORCE BASE, N.Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer left by plane for home today, hurrying back to attend the funeral of Dr. Hermann Ehlers, president of the lower house of the German Parliament.

Adenauer, shortening his planned visit here, came to Mitchell by car after receiving an honorary degree—along with Queen Mother Elizabeth of England—at Columbia University's bicentennial convocation.

Adenauer's party of 15 was accompanied by James B. Conant, U.S. high commissioner to Germany, who also will attend Ehler's funeral Wednesday in Oidenburg, Germany.

They took off at 7:09 p.m. in a four-engine Military Air Transport Service plane, with planned stops overnight in Bermuda tomorrow and in the Azores Tuesday.

Strauss Cites Gains In Atomic Program For War And Peace

This is the last in a series of articles by top executives in the Eisenhower administration offered by the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate to some 1,600 daily newspapers throughout the country as a public service. The articles are designed as mid-term reports to the American people on the administration's accomplishments and plans.

By LEWIS L. STRAUSS
Chairman of AEC

The Atomic Energy Commission functions under a definite determination of policy by the Congress of the United States. The law establishes as our "paramount objective" that we shall make the maximum contribution to the common defense. From the beginning, this has been held to mean the development, manufacture and testing of weapons of great destructive power.

The necessity for maintaining superiority in atomic weapons is one of the grim realities of our generation. Perhaps the fate of Western civilization as we know it depends upon the success we achieve in this area. Without much doubt, our atomic-weapon capability has restrained full-scale aggression since the last war ended. Our recognized capacity to retaliate with atomic weapons may continue to act as a brake on the designs of those who have demonstrated their desire to subjugate the whole world to a particular system.

Tests Show No Poison In Food Served Nixon

Anonymous Caller
'Phones Warning
To Secret Service

SEATTLE, Oct. 31 (AP)—Preliminary tests of food served Vice President Nixon last night revealed no evidence of poison, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer reported today.

The paper quoted Al Schillings, manager of the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, where the incident took place, as saying he had been so informed by Bert C. Cline, agent in charge of the Seattle Secret Service Office.

Schillings said Cline told him the testing of the food was still not completed, however.

Food Taken To Room

The tests were ordered of a Swiss cheese sandwich and other food brought to Nixon in his room a short while before he made a television speech to a Seattle audience.

First word of the warning, telephoned to the secret service, was given the press by Nixon's secretary, William A. Kloefer Jr., after the vice president had concluded his address. Nixon had not eaten any of the food when the call came. Kloefer said the vice president had dismissed the idea as the act of a crank but the Secret Service had insisted on substituting other food prepared under its supervision.

Private Lab Makes Tests

Seattle police then were asked to make a laboratory analysis of the food but had no analyst on duty and a private laboratory was given the job.

The anonymous telephone call came through the switchboard at the Hotel Benjamin Franklin and was received by the Secret Service man in the room next to Nixon's.

Kloefer said the caller said "something to the effect that the food just delivered to the vice president's room had been poisoned."

Nehru Believes China Anxious To Avoid War

SAIGON, Indochina, Oct. 31 (AP)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India, returning from a 10-day visit to Red China, said today the Peiping regime will have its hands full for 15 or 20 years with economic development and wants peace.

Nehru summed up his impressions on China for newsmen just before flying to the little kingdom of Cambodia on his way home. He reached Saigon yesterday.

(A French Press Agency dispatch said he arrived in Phnom Penh, Cambodian capital, and was greeted at the airport by a representative of King Norodom Sihanouk, Premier Pen Nouth, and members of the diplomatic corps.)

"My visit to China has led me to believe the people of China are anxious to have peace and avoid war," Nehru said here, adding that he was impressed with the hopes for peace expressed by Red China's No. 1 boss Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai. He said he had the impression China does not wish to interfere in the internal affairs of other countries.

Party Chairmen Exchange Blasts

Hall, Mitchell
Debate Issues

[By The Associated Press]

The warring camps in the battle for Congress sent up their all-but-final barrages Sunday.

Republicans hit hardest on the prosperity-without-war theme, calling on the nation to rally behind President Eisenhower's last-minute "10 times 10" telephone appeal. Democrats blasted the GOP prosperity claim as phony and forecast rising unemployment if the Republicans win tomorrow's election.

Across the country, almost 75 million eligible voters held the answer: Two more years of solid Republican control, or a GOP President with a Democratic-controlled House or Senate or both.

Party Chairmen In TV Debate

National chairmen of the rival parties broke the usual Sunday-before-election lull in a televised (CBS) debate summing up a generally sluggish campaign which warmed up in its closing days as President Eisenhower, once aloof from the fray, waded in with drama and gusto.

Stephen A. Mitchell, for the Democrats, asserted the Eisenhower administration is "so one-sided" in favor of business and industry that the country must elect a Democratic Congress—one that, he said, "will represent all of the people."

GOP Chairman Leonard W. Hall countered with a claim—stressed by the President in last week's final round of personal campaigning—that the Republicans have brought the nation to a peacetime prosperity peak, with more than 62 millions employed.

"And we don't need a war to keep them at work," Hall declared.

The national chairmen clashed, too, on other familiar issues—including "corruption."

Housing Scandal Cited

Hall predicted the federal housing irregularities eventually "will top all of the other Truman era scandals" in the number of prosecutions. He said the Republicans "have brought honesty, decency and integrity back to Washington." And he challenged Mitchell to name a single GOP-hired official indicted for any offense.

"You just bide your time—we'll catch up with you," the Democratic chairman fired back.

There was some booing and jeering from the studio audience when Hall said the Eisenhower administration has chopped "6,326 subversives" from the government payroll. Hall quickly changed that to "subversives and security risks." The Democrats have challenged the accuracy of GOP figures on this score.

CAP Craft Finds Plane, Crashes

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 31 (AP)—A cruising Civil Air Patrol plane, which itself crashed minutes after the discovery, today found the burned wreckage of a private plane in which three persons died on a flight from New York's LaGuardia Field to Bradley Field in Windsor Locks.

The two men in the CAP plane were injured, one critically, in a crash landing in a pasture about a mile from the wreckage which they found on the sloping side of Mt. Higby, within Middletown's city limits.

Burned beyond recognition were Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell of Lockport, N. Y., and their pilot, Donald Goodridge of Hamburg, N. Y.

PRINCE MISSING—Iran yesterday asked neighboring Russia to permit Iranian and American planes to fly over Soviet territory in search of the plane carrying the Shah's brother, Prince Ali Reza (above), 32, missing since Wednesday. A note to the Soviet Union said it was "quite probable" the prince's plane force-landed in Russian territory bordering on the rugged part of Iran.

Negro Jailed On Murder Charge In Girl's Slaying

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP)—Elijah Thompson Jr., 23, is in the Beaver County Jail today, charged with murder in the slaying of a 16-year-old neighbor girl whose body was found covered with leaves on a hill near their homes.

Thompson, an unemployed Negro laborer, was arrested last night, within hours after the body of Helen Jean Bryant, a pretty high school sophomore in nearby Aliquippa, was found.

Dist. Atty. Richard P. Steward refused to discuss details of the case.

Hearing Is Set

Justice of the Peace Rudolph Schwartz of Aliquippa borough said Thompson will be given a hearing before him at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow. Thompson was held without bond.

The girl's body, nearly nude, bore evidence of a possible attempt at rape, Mrs. Margaret Sanders, deputy coroner, said. The girl was killed by a blunt instrument or stone, Mrs. Sanders said, adding that laboratory study will show definitely whether Helen Jean was attacked. The study will be completed by Tuesday, Mrs. Sanders said.

Child's Slayer Hunted

Helen Jean was last seen when she left for school Monday. Her school books and the contents of a pencil box were scattered about her body, all covered with leaves.

Meanwhile, 100 miles away in Conemaugh, Pa., a manhunt continued for the slayer of six-year-old Karen Mauk whose nude body was found in a churchyard Friday.

Police would make no comment on a possible link between the two cases.

Grau Quits Cuban Election, Denouncing It As "Farce"

HAVANA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Ramon Grau San Martin tonight pulled out of the presidential race in tomorrow's general election leaving Fulgencio Batista the lone candidate for Cuba's presidency.

Denouncing the election as a "farce," the 72-year-old Grau, who has been contesting for a third whirl at the chief executive's job, pulled out only 12 hours before Cuba's 2½ million voters were to go to the polls. They are to choose a president, vice president, a Congress and many mayors and other officers.

He announced his decision shortly after the five-man Superior Electoral Tribunal had unanimously denied his 11th hour appeal for a postponement of the elections for 8 or 10 days.

Earlier the tribunal had granted his demands for three changes in the electoral procedures. These included the granting of permission

Search Teams Comb Atlantic For Transport

Vast Hunt Launched;
Passengers Include
Service Dependents

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—A four-motored Navy transport plane with 42 persons aboard was presumed lost tonight, 24 hours after taking off from Patuxent, Md., on a transatlantic flight.

A 2,000-square mile area into which the plane disappeared was searched today and tonight by a giant sea-air team of Navy and Coast Guard units.

Two aircraft carriers, nine destroyers, four transports, two Coast Guard cutters and hundreds of aircraft hunted for the missing craft, a Lockheed Superconstellation.

Flare Comes From Sub

The search was concentrated in a 120-mile ribbon extending from the Eastern seaboard to the Azores.

A flare in the search area, some 205 miles off Virginia, sent a brief, if faint, shaft of hope into the search tonight.

But the Navy said a check showed the flare came from a submarine engaged in maneuvers.

The plane was last heard from at 11 p.m. Saturday, two hours after it had taken off for Port Lyautey, Africa, and the Azores. At that time it was about 300 miles off Cape May, N. J.

The Navy said the plane carried 21 crew members and 21 passengers including eight civilians and two Air Force men.

Dependents Aboard

The passengers included men on assignment to new stations and their dependents, as well as some dependents on their way to join personnel on duty abroad.

The entire family of Lt. Gilbert Jacobsen, a Brooklyn resident, was reported missing. This included Jacobsen, his wife, son and a daughter.

Also among the missing were the wife, two sons and daughter of Lt. Cmdr. J. W. Harr, stationed at Port Lyautey.

Planes and ships from the United States, Newfoundland, Bermuda, Africa and the Azores were thrown into the search.

It was certain that the plane, a Lockheed Superconstellation, was down—her fuel supply was sufficient only to last until 10 a.m. today.

Seven Mexicans Killed, 60 Hurt In Truck Crash

DEL RIO, Tex., Oct. 31 (AP)—Seven men were killed when a cattle truck loaded with 85 Mexican migrant workers struck a low culvert and overturned five miles northwest of here shortly before dawn today.

Sixty of the men were injured, three of them critically, and the other survivors suffered shock when the huge tractor-trailer truck was demolished after it straddled one of the rails of the culvert, plunged down an incline and overturned.

Charges of negligent homicide in the first degree were filed here at noon against the driver of the truck, Rayford Lynn Hewett, 17, of Plainview, Tex., who was uninjured in the crash. His bond was set at $500.

For polling place chairmen to announce results instead of the tribunal, and the appointment of election inspectors in 126 municipalities to watch the polling on Grau's behalf.

But the 72-year-old Grau said these decisions came too late to be effective and demanded a postponement in the polling.

Grau, addressing followers who crowded most of the rooms and the garden of his luxurious residence in Havana, said, "We will go to elections when they are free."

He urged them to boycott the elections tomorrow "which will perpetuate in power the same dictatorship which now has control."

He reiterated charges that the Batista government was "persecuting" and arresting the people, seizing identification cards which they must show at the polls in order to vote, and achieving victory by force and violence.

Four U. S. Warships Damaged In Crashes

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 31 (AP)—Three destroyers and a submarine were damaged in two collisions in warfare exercises some 270 miles east of Norfolk.

There were no personnel casualties, an Atlantic Fleet spokesman said in reporting the collisions.

In the first mishap, the destroyer Norris rammed the superstructure of the submarine Bergall. In the second collision the destroyers English and W. L. Lind collided while making runs on a submerged contact.

Sub's Hull Intact

The Norris reported five of her compartments were flooded. The Bergall reported her superstructure was damaged but her hull was intact.

The submarine headed for the Philadelphia Navy Yard accompanied by the submarine Angler. The Norris headed for Norfolk, accompanied by the destroyer escort F. T. Berry.

In the second collision, 31 feet of the bow of the destroyer English was bent and broken off. She reported her forward watertight bulkhead intact. The Lind reported an 8-foot hole in her port bow. Both headed for Norfolk under escort.

Vessels In No Danger

All four vessels were reported to be in no immediate danger.

The four vessels were engaged in Operation Landflex, the Atlantic Fleet's largest postwar maneuvers, which began Oct. 20 and will continue until Nov. 20. More than 200 ships are engaged in the exercise.

Newport, R.I. is the home port of the Norris. The Lind and the English are based at Norfolk, and the Bergall at New London, Conn. The submarine salvage vessel Tringa was ordered out of New London to rendezvous with the Bergall and take her on into port.

CAP Craft Finds Plane, Crashes

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 31 (AP)—A cruising Civil Air Patrol plane, which itself crashed minutes after the discovery, today found the burned wreckage of a private plane in which three persons died on a flight from New York's La Guardia Field to Bradley Field in Windsor Locks.

The two men in the CAP plane were injured, one critically, in a crash landing in a pasture about a mile from the wreckage which they found on the sloping side of Mt. Higby, within Middletown's city limits.

Burned beyond recognition were Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell of Lockport, N. Y., and their pilot, Donald Goodridge of Hamburg, N. Y.

PRINCE MISSING—Iran yesterday asked neighboring Russia to permit Iranian and American planes to fly over Soviet territory in search of the plane carrying the Shah's brother, Prince Ali Reza (above), 32, missing since Wednesday. A note to the Soviet Union said it was "quite probable" the prince's plane force-landed in Russian territory bordering on the rugged part of Iran.

Negro Jailed On Murder Charge In Girl's Slaying

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 31 (AP)—Elijah Thompson Jr., 23, is in the Beaver County Jail today, charged with murder in the slaying of a 16-year-old neighbor girl whose body was found covered with leaves on a hill near their homes.

Thompson, an unemployed Negro laborer, was arrested last night, within hours after the body of Helen Jean Bryant, a pretty high school sophomore in nearby Aliquippa, was found.

Dist. Atty. Richard P. Steward refused to discuss details of the case.

Hearing Is Set

Justice of the Peace Rudolph Schwartz of Aliquippa borough said Thompson will be given a hearing before him at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow. Thompson was held without bond.

The girl's body, nearly nude, bore evidence of a possible attempt at rape, Mrs. Margaret Sanders, deputy coroner, said. The girl was killed by a blunt instrument or stone, Mrs. Sanders said, adding that laboratory study will show definitely whether Helen Jean was attacked. The study will be completed by Tuesday, Mrs. Sanders said.

Child's Slaying Hunted

Helen Jean was last seen when she left for school Monday. Her school books and the contents of a pencil box were scattered about her body, all covered with leaves.

Meanwhile, 100 miles away in Conemaugh, Pa., a manhunt continued for the slayer of six-year-old Karen Mauk whose nude body was found in a churchyard Friday.

Police would make no comment on a possible link between the two cases.

Grau Quits Cuban Election, Denouncing It As "Farce"

HAVANA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Ramon Grau San Martin tonight pulled out of the presidential race in tomorrow's general election leaving Fulgencio Batista the lone candidate for Cuba's presidency.

Denouncing the election as a "farce," the 72-year-old Grau, who has been contesting for a third whirl at the chief executive's job, pulled out only 12 hours before Cuba's 2½ million voters were to go to the polls. They are to choose a president, vice president, a Congress and many mayors and other officers.

He announced his decision shortly after the five-man Superior Electoral Tribunal had unanimously denied his 11th hour appeal for a postponement of the elections for 8 or 10 days.

Earlier the tribunal had granted his demands for three changes in the electoral procedures. These included the granting of permission

Search Teams Comb Atlantic For Transport

Vast Hunt Launched;
Passengers Include
Service Dependents

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—A four-motored Navy transport plane with 42 persons aboard was presumed lost tonight, 24 hours after taking off from Patuxent, Md., on a transatlantic flight.

A 2,000-square mile area into which the plane disappeared was searched today and tonight by a giant sea-air team of Navy and Coast Guard units.

Two aircraft carriers, nine destroyers, four transports, two Coast Guard cutters and hundreds of aircraft hunted for the missing craft, a Lockheed Superconstellation.

Flare Comes From Sub

The search was concentrated in a 120-mile ribbon extending from the Eastern seaboard to the Azores.

A flare in the search area, some 205 miles off Virginia, sent a brief, if faint, shaft of hope into the search tonight.

But the Navy said a check showed the flare came from a submarine engaged in maneuvers.

The plane was last heard from at 11 p.m. Saturday, two hours after it had taken off for Port Lyautey, Africa, and the Azores. At that time it was about 300 miles off Cape May, N. J.

The Navy said the plane carried 21 crew members and 21 passengers including eight civilians and two Air Force men.

Dependents Aboard

The passengers included men on assignment to new stations and their dependents, as well as some dependents on their way to join personnel on duty abroad.

The entire family of Lt. Gilbert Jacobsen, a Brooklyn resident, was reported missing. This included Jacobsen, his wife, son and a daughter.

Also among the missing were the wife, two sons and daughter of Lt. Cmdr. J. W. Harr, stationed at Port Lyautey.

Planes and ships from the United States, Newfoundland, Bermuda, Africa and the Azores were thrown into the search.

It was certain that the plane, a Lockheed Superconstellation, was down—her fuel supply was sufficient only to last until 10 a.m. today.

Seven Mexicans Killed, 60 Hurt In Truck Crash

DEL RIO, Tex., Oct. 31 (AP)—Seven men were killed when a cattle truck loaded with 85 Mexican migrant workers struck a low culvert and overturned five miles northwest of here shortly before dawn today.

Sixty of the men were injured, three of them critically, and the other survivors suffered shock when the huge tractor-trailer truck was demolished after it straddled one of the rails of the culvert, plunged down an incline and overturned.

Charges of negligent homicide in the first degree were filed here at noon against the driver of the truck, Rayford Lynn Hewitt, 17, of Plainview, Tex., who was uninjured in the crash. His bond was set at $500.

Adapt the current fashions to your figure by studying their lines — and yours.

Secrets of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Can you wear the new dresses with the lowered waistline? The secret of appearing well-dressed lies in coordinating fashions with your figure and coloring. You must adapt — rather than adopt — the season's dominant line.

Effect of Line

The new fashions feature less indentation at the waistline, less accentuation above the waist, less fullness below. The figure will appear straighter; the torso, longer. Unless you are slender, beware of these lines. They will make you look short and wide.

The centered vertical line adds height and subtracts from girth. That's why the shortwaisted dress is still a beloved classic. Its vertically lined buttons or seaming flatter all but the overly slim.

Since line is the first consideration in your selection of individually becoming clothes, here are some tips on today's popular silhouettes and how they will affect your appearance.

Suits: long jacket — good for the tall, slim figure; box jacket — you can wear this type if you're average; short jacket — pair it with a straight skirt or one that flares softly, if you're short and slim; "dressmaker" jacket — best for the heavy figure, short or tall.

Dresses and separates: loose middie styles — wear them if you're slim (short or tall) or average long fitted torso — avoid this if you're heavy, since any form-fitting area tends to emphasize girth; jumper — narrowed, but not form-fitting, if you're heavy... flaring, if you're slender; coat-dress — good for everyone; fullness in proportion to your own measurements; supple, mobile lines — again, a good-for-everyone type.

And Coats

Coats: Slim and loose, or a torso line — which shall it be? Keep in mind that the slim, easy line lengths, while the opposing curves of a princely style cut the figure short and accented bulk at the bottom and hips. Just knowing these two facts will make your choice easier.

All in all, the newest fashions are more flattering to more women than is the pinched waistline with fullness above and below. The less-defined bust and straight skirt, when such lines are adapted to your figure, can have a most lovely, feminine look.

"WHAT'S YOUR LINE?" — Horizontal, vertical and diagonal lines make a world of difference in what clothing will do for (or to) your figure. This "P.S." gives you complete information on handling lines to your own best advantage. Write to Secrets of Charm in care of this newspaper, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed return envelope for a copy of WHAT'S YOUR LINE?

State's Election Drive Enters Home Stretch

McKeldin Says Rival Conceals Issues

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin said tonight he is glad to note that the "early apathy" toward the Tuesday election "appears to have been replaced by genuine concern as the citizens have come to a realization that real issues are at stake."

The Republican governor, seeking to become the first chief executive from GOP ranks ever to succeed himself, accused his opponent of trying to conceal the issues, summarized his own campaign and gave State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles a pat on the back in a lengthy statement from his headquarters here.

He accused Democrat H. C. Byrd and his advisors—"either because of lack of knowledge or fear of comparisons"—of seeking "to keep the issues affecting the State and its citizens blurred in the background."

McKeldin said: "In these past four years, ours has been a calm, capable government of progress, constantly in touch with the general public and the consensus of its wishes. Because we have planned well, and discussed our plans with the people of Maryland, we have avoided the uncertainties and unsettling influences of special sessions of the Legislature."

"By the same democratic means, we have avoided surprise, bombshell legislation. We have dug no holes from which it was necessary to extricate ourselves."

The governor repeated previously announced plan, if re-elected, to continue the Commission on State Finances and Bonded Debt.

He also said: "I have spoken frankly of the excellent cooperation I have enjoyed from my colleagues on the Board of Public Works and the benefits that have accrued to the State and its taxpayers from this cooperation. I have expressed my wish that this sound bi-partisan control of the State's top-ranking administrative fiscal body may be continued."

He noted that Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, a Democrat, is assured of re-election because he is unopposed. The other member, Treasurer Hooper S. Miles, is elected by the Legislature.

McKeldin said: "I... shall exercise all advice and influence, within the range of propriety, to bring about the General Assembly's re-election of... Miles..."

The governor's Sunday appearances were mostly limited to religious gatherings after Saturday political tour of Washington County.

The Irish were the first Europeans to recognize the potato as a staple food.

Byrd Plans TV Appeal Tonight

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP)—H. C. Byrd set out today on a round of oyster roasts and strategy meetings in his Democratic campaign for governor, capping his last full day of campaigning at a dinner in suburban Dundalk.

The former University of Maryland president, back from a Saturday swing through Garrett and Allegany counties, was featured at the dinner along with former Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida.

Headquarters officials in Baltimore said Byrd will make his last appeal to the voters in a radio and television speech Monday night, then retire to his home near the university campus at College Park.

He plans to vote early Tuesday at the volunteer fire house, returning to Baltimore to follow the returns in the downtown hotel which was the nerve center of his grueling campaign.

As that campaign entered the home stretch, Democratic headquarters predicted Byrd would pile up a majority of "over 30,000" in Maryland's 23 counties alone, plus "another substantial majority" in Baltimore City.

According to the prediction, State Sen. C. Ferdinand Sybert "will win easily" in his bid for attorney general, and the Democrats, besides retaining their three congressional seats from Baltimore, will add at least two more from the counties.

About 255 attended a Cumberland dinner rally last night and heard Byrd sum up his program for revitalizing the economy of Western Maryland.

He called for better roads to improve commerce and attract tourist trade; a plan of research on new uses for and processing of such local products as coal and maple sugar, and an advertising program to boost the use of recreational facilities and vacation spots in the area.

Both Parties Say 'Chain Reaction' Drives Success

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Republicans claimed today their "10 times 10" telephone campaign "is sweeping the country," while Democrats said their doorbell ringing drive "seems to be going fine."

Neither had specific figures to back up their claims to success for their last-minute special efforts to get out the voters in Tuesday's general election, but explained their campaigns were not set up on a report-back basis.

President Eisenhower sparked the Republican telephone campaign Saturday with calls to 10 "representative" citizens in nine states. The idea was that each would be asked to call 10 friends, each of whom would call 10 more, and so on to urge the casting of ballots in the general election.

In a prompt countermove, Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell urged Democrats to walk—not phone—to their neighbors' homes to promote a similar chain-reaction idea, saying:

"We are the party with the record and the candidates which can afford to meet the voters face to face."

Eisenhower's example was followed by Cabinet officers, campaign officials, Republican state governors and local party officials, and GOP Chairman Leonard Hall said today the effort is "sweeping the country."

Elephant Shares Halloween 'Loot'

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31 (AP)—A young elephant cornered a good portion of "trick or treat" Halloween loot last night when she made an unscheduled appearance by accident.

The elephant, Sheba, aged 5, escaped injury when the trailer in which she was riding overturned on Firestone Boulevard near San Antonio Drive.

The traffic victim enjoyed the half-hour it took to clear the blocked traffic lane.

"She spent all her time begging peanuts from the kids," said Highway Patrolman R. H. Phipps.

U.N. Session Half Over; Little Accomplished

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 31 (AP)—The ninth U. N. General Assembly was at its scheduled halfway point today with a do-little record and serious doubts it can clean up its schedule by Dec. 10.

That is the target date for winding up the Assembly, which opened Sept. 21. Some secretariat members have begun to discuss the probability of another Christmas recess with the Assembly coming back after Jan. 1. U. S. sources have indicated they will fight this.

The Assembly's main Political Committee is now bogged down in the question of collective measures and no certainty when America's Charles Mahoney will make his policy speech.

Russia Claims New First

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Russia claimed another first tonight—the first parachute jump in history in the North Pole area.

Moscow radio said the polar jump was made by master of sport Andrei Medvedev with the purpose of finding a landing area for a group of scientists. Medvedev, incidentally, means bear.

Crash Of Shaw Plane Probed

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 31 (AP)—CAA investigators tried to determine today whether mechanical failure, the only thing that ever stopped Wilbur Shaw on an auto race track, caused the airplane crash that killed the Indianapolis Motor Speedway president and two companions Saturday.

Shaw, the three-time winner of the Indianapolis 500-mile race before he joined millionaire sportsman Anton J. Hulman Jr., in the track management, often said he never expected to survive 20 years of fiercely competitive racing.

He lived through a half dozen spectacular wrecks and a severe heart attack in 1951, only to die on the eve of his 52nd birthday in a cornfield near Decatur, Ind.

cut down Democratic prospects of picking up House seats. All across the nation, it appears to have tightened key races for Senate and governor seats—not in all states but in such ones as:

Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia in the East; Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Kentucky in the Midwest and on the border; Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Arizona in the Far West. In Arizona, polls and opinions of political experts indicate there has been a switch and Ernest W. McFarland, former Democratic leader of the U.S. Senate, now is running second to Republican incumbent Howard Pyle for governor.

But in Ohio, where the GOP hopes to gain a Senate seat, there were belated signs the Democrats might be inching up, even though this was one of the states Eisenhower picked for a last minute campaign appearance. There it's Democratic incumbent Thomas A. Burke against Republican Rep.

George H. Bender. Kentucky now may be a tossup, although there is a general feeling that former Vice President Alben W. Barkley still is likely to knock over GOP Sen. John Sherman Cooper and return to the Senate. Eisenhower showed up in Kentucky last week, too.

Political fence sitters in West Virginia caution against classing Democratic Sen. Matthew M. Neely as a shoo-in for another term over Republican Tom Sweeney.

In New York, Democrats have revised downward their estimated victory margin for Averell Harriman, who is fighting it out with Sen. Irving M. Ives in a bitter, name-calling battle for the governorship. Harriman still is favored to win, by polls and many political authorities.

In change there is opportunity

America has earned more "time off" than ever before

The five-day week, the shorter work day, the two-week vacation, additional holidays—all these add up to more "time off" for millions of Americans.

And we have more income to help us take advantage of this time off. All this has come about mainly because America is working more efficiently—producing more in less time.

How are people using their extra spare time and increased income? More and more are turning to sports and hobbies, and are developing new interests. More are taking part in community activities. Almost 12 million have home workshops. Nearly half our families take vacation trips each year.

More time off and increased incomes have thus made possible a better way of living for millions of Americans. And families are taking steps to protect this way of living. Through life insurance they are guaranteeing a financial backlog if the father dies. American families are now buying more than three times as much life insurance as in 1940.

And more and more families are turning to life insurance for its living benefits, too—for example, to help pay for the children's education or to help build an adequate retirement program. More than half of all life insurance benefits are now paid to the policyholders themselves.

Today, life insurance is America's most popular form of thrift—owned by 90 million men, women and children.

State's Election Drive Enters Home Stretch

McKeldin Says Rival Conceals Issues

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP) — Gov. McKeldin said tonight he is glad to note that the "early apathy" toward the Tuesday election "appears to have been replaced by genuine concern as the citizens have come to a realization that real issues are at stake."

The Republican governor, seeking to become the first chief executive from GOP ranks ever to succeed himself, accused his opponent of trying to conceal the issues, summarized his own campaign and gave State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles a pat on the back in a lengthy statement from his headquarters here.

He accused Democrat H. C. Byrd and his advisors—"either because of lack of knowledge or fear of comparisons"—of seeking "to keep the issues affecting the State and its citizens blurred in the background."

Hospital Addition Under Roof

Shown here is the east side of the new maternity wing of Miners Hospital, Frostburg. In the background is a section of the main building. Contractors completed the work on the roof construction during the past week, and are now engaged on the interior. Money for this much needed addition to Miners Hospital was accumulated over a period of the last eight years. The first appropriation of $93,000 was announced in a telegram October 25, 1946 from former Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor to Post Master Michael J. Byrnes. Of this amount, $13,000 was to be dedicated to repairs to the old building and the remaining $80,000 as a nucleus toward the construction of a new addition. Two appropriations were received under the administration of Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin. In 1951, $150,000 was approved by McKeldin for the new building and $9,500 for fire protection facilities. In 1952 the Governor approved an additional appropriation of $160,000 and came here personally in March 1954 and broke ground for the new building.

Potomac River Basin Group To Meet On Friday

Julian G. Patrick
Of Luke To Preside

Industrial chemists, sanitary engineers, land-use planners and public health specialists will gather in Martinsburg, W. Va., on November 5 to consider means for meeting problems of industrial waste disposal in the Potomac Valley region.

This will be the third Industrial Waste Forum sponsored by the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin in the interest of clean waters in the 14,500 square mile, four-state-District of Columbia Potomac Valley Conservancy District.

Speakers will include A. E. Gorman, division of reactor development, Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Charles Norman, professor of physiology, West Virginia University; George Griffiths, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co., Luke; Duane Snyder, plant chemist, Crompton-Shenandoah Textile Co., Waynesboro, Va.; R. W. Haywood, Jr., duPont de Nemours Co., Wilmington, Del.; and L. S. Hartley, agricultural development specialist, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Louis E. Otts, Jr., department of civil engineering, University of Maryland, will be the discussion leader, and both sessions will be presided over by Julian G. Patrick, of Luke, chairman of the Commission's Industrial Committee.

Patrick, in announcing the forum program, noted that the Potomac and its tributaries receive the waste discharges of 112 industrial plants as well as 129 municipalities in addition to heavy loads of silt from inadequately protected agricultural lands.

"A principal objective of the Commission," he said, "is to make a cleaner and more attractive Potomac for all purposes. This includes the water supply needed by men and beasts, the conservation of the natural beauty of the stream, and the broadening generally of the utility of this great river by the reduction of pollutants to a minimum."

"Progress has been made during the 14-year life of the four-state sanitation compact. During the period between 1947 and 1952, for instance, pollution was reduced in the Potomac by 38 per cent, important new sewage and waste treatment and reduction facilities have been built since, and other disposal works are in construction or advanced planning stages."

A kinescope projection of the first section of the National Broadcasting System's public service televised feature "Our Beautiful Potomac," will be shown during the forum meeting and at a public view on the preceding evening in the Shenandoah Hotel in Martinsburg. The NBC pictures were made in cooperation with the Interstate Commission and the Public Health Service.

PIEDMONT—The American Red Cross which operated a Disaster Relief Center here in the Piedmont Library spent $2,115.66 for local flood sufferers, according to R. G. Spangler, Elkins, representative of the Red Cross in this area.

He itemized some of the activities at a meeting of Piedmont Chapter at the Library Thursday night as follows: Red Cross assistance for mass care, $89.24; food, clothing and maintenance, $37.60; repair to buildings, $57.92; for household furnishings $1902.72 would have cost $1,000 more without aid of the United Organizations; medical care $5.

Spangler highly praised the work of the United Organizations the best organization of that type he has seen in the state.

He said 44 cases were reported to them but four withdrew their requests voluntarily. Spangler said he felt the needs of the situation had been met. All of the families have stoves, dry beds and clothing in their homes. He believed there never was a disaster work that had the cooperation the Red Cross received here and complimented Wayne Ritchie, chairman of the Westernport and Luke Lions Club for his fine work as well as all other organizations and individuals.

Spangler stated he feels the stricken people are well satisfied with what they received. Every family stated as each particular case was closed, they were satisfied and they needed no further Red Cross assistance.

He outlined some of the things in planning a disaster organization for the future.

First, he suggested in an emergency, people have to be fed and have a place to sleep. Shelter is usually a last resort but in the present case the houses were too wet to sleep in and a place had to be provided. Second, a canteen chairman and food committee.

Spangler returned to Elkins and will go to Parsons to help with the disaster problem there but he said he will return here to help set up a good disaster organization later.

Miss Kay Ornduff, a case worker from California who was sent east for emergency work left here Thursday for Rowelsburg to help there.

Miss Anna Abramson, chairman of Piedmont Chapter presided over the meeting.

What's Your Answer MR. STAGGERS?

Paw Paw, West Virginia October 23, 1954
Congressman Harley O. Staggers
Keyser, West Virginia
Dear Mr. Staggers:

For a long time, many of your friends here in the Eastern Panhandle have felt proud and thankful about the position and principles of these now running for Congress.

With this in mind, I submit the following questions, which, if properly answered, will quickly and decisively clear up any misunderstanding as to where you stand with regards to this issue, which seems vitally important to many of your constituents.

1. Do you believe that Governor Marland and his staff are managing the affairs of West Virginia in an honorable and efficient manner, or that they should be replaced by better men?

2. Do you subscribe to the statement of Senator Neely that the killing financial illness of West Virginia's Coal Industry, which has existed more or less since World War II, and the terrible plight of our unemployed miners is all due to President Eisenhower?

3. Do you agree with Senator Neely's many recent wild political statements such as, "Eisenhower is the worst President the United States ever had," or do you feel that a

We fervently hope this does not mean that our Congressman has accepted and adopted the very questionable methods and principles of the Neely-Marland faction and thereby become a member of the so-called "State House Gang."

man holding the high office of United States Senator should speak truthfully and with proper respect when referring to the President of the United States?

4. Is your present close association with Senator Neely just a temporary marriage of convenience that will terminate November 2, or are we to understand that from now on you are a full-fledged member of the Neely-Marland political faction?

It is easy to see that Senator Neely needed you to add a semblance of decency to his campaign, but hard to see how he could do anything but harm to you and your interests.

Because of the very serious nature of this issue, which is of great concern to so many of our fellow citizens, I am taking the liberty of releasing this letter to any newspaper which cares to use it, and trust your answer will be handled likewise.

I sincerely hope that you can straighten this matter out to the complete satisfaction of all concerned.

Hospital Addition Under Roof

Shown here is the east side of the new maternity wing of Miners Hospital, Frostburg. In the background is a section of the main building. Contractors completed the work on the roof construction during the past week, and are now engaged on the interior. Money for this much needed addition to Miners Hospital was accumulated over a period of the last eight years. The first appropriation of $93,000 was announced in a telegram October 25, 1946 from former Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor to Post Master Michael J. Byrnes. Of this amount, $13,000 was to be dedicated to repairs to the old building and the remaining $80,000 as a nucleus toward the construction of a new addition. Two appropriations were received under the administration of Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin. In 1951, $150,000 was approved by McKeldin for the new building and $9,500 for fire protection facilities. In 1952 the Governor approved an additional appropriation of $160,000 and came here personally in March 1954 and broke ground for the new building.

Potomac River Basin Group To Meet On Friday

Julian G. Patrick
Of Luke To Preside

Industrial chemists, sanitary engineers, land-use planners and public health specialists will gather in Martinsburg, W. Va., on November 5 to consider means for meeting problems of industrial waste disposal in the Potomac Valley region.

This will be the third Industrial Wastes Forum sponsored by the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin in the interest of clean waters in the 14,500 square mile, four-state-district of Columbia Potomac Valley Conservancy District.

Speakers will include A. E. Gorman, division of reactor development, Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D. C.; Dr. Charles Norman, professor of physiology, West Virginia University; George Griffiths, West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co.; Luke, Duane Snyder, plant chemist, Crompton-Shenandoah Textile Co., Waynesboro, Va.; R. W. Haywood, Jr., duPont de Nemours Co., Wilmington, Del.; and L. S. Hartley, agricultural development specialist, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Louis E. Otis, Jr., department of civil engineering, University of Maryland, will be the discussion leader, and both sessions will be presided over by Julian G. Patrick, of Luke, chairman of the Commission's Industrial Committee.

Patrick, in announcing the forum program, noted that the Potomac and its tributaries receive the waste discharges of 112 industrial plants as well as 129 municipalities in addition to heavy loads of silt from inadequately protected agricultural lands.

"A principal objective of the Commission," he said, "is to make a cleaner and more attractive Potomac for all purposes. This includes the water supply needed by men and beasts, the conservation of the natural beauty of the stream, and the broadening generally of the utility of this great river by the reduction of pollutants to a minimum."

"Progress has been made during the 14-year life of the four-state sanitation compact. During the period between 1947 and 1952, for instance, pollution was reduced in the Potomac by 38 per cent, important new sewage and waste treatment and reduction facilities have been built since, and other disposal works are in construction or advanced planning stages."

A kinescope projection of the first session of the National Broadcasting System's public service television feature "Our Beautiful Potomac" will be shown during the forum meeting and at a public view on the preceding evening in the Shenandoah Hotel in Martinsburg. The NBC pictures were made in cooperation with the Interstate Commission and the Public Health Service.

Congressman Harley O. Staggers

Keyser, West Virginia

Dear Mr. Staggers:

For a long time, many of your friends here in the Eastern Panhandle have felt proud and thankful that our Congressman was not a part of the Neely-Marland-State House faction of the Democratic Party, which has brought so much trouble to West Virginia, both morally and financially. We believe that Harley Staggers was a man big enough and honorable enough to stand above and away from cheap, petty politics.

Today your friends, referred to above, are concerned and confused. We wonder why your picture appears in advertisements and why newspaper articles keep referring to a joint campaign on mutual issues being carried on by you and Senator Neely in the Second District.

We fervently hope this does not mean that our Congressman has accepted and adopted the very questionable methods and principles of the Neely-Marland faction and thereby become a member of the so-called "State House Gang."

Election day is nearby and it is very important that the people of our district learn as much as possible about the position and principles of those now running for Congress.

With this in mind, I submit the following questions, which, if properly answered, will quickly and decisively clear up any misunderstanding as to where you stand with regards to this issue, which seems vitally important to many of your constituents.

Byrd Promises Better Roads For This Area

Dr. H. C. Byrd told a gathering of several hundred Democrats at a final campaign speech Saturday at the Port Cumberland Hotel that his program envisions better roads for Allegheny and Garrett counties, and also an improvement in the economic conditions.

Taking a crack at the highway situation here, Byrd said roads will be built to attract both the tourists and shopping public of nearby states.

Farming products and the coal industry will be aided through a combined program of research and advertisement of this area's agriculture and other resources. As an example he mentioned the maple sugar of Garrett County.

"Much of the so-called Vermont maple sugar actually is bought here in bulk and then reshipped back in the form of maple syrup," he pointed out.

Another resource which he mentioned "is the human resource." Too many young people are moving to metropolitan centers in order to obtain employment he said. "This is a loss we can ill afford," he added.

Gov. McKeldin is opposed to the Democratic platform plan of having an Industrial and Economic Commission to further the state's welfare, Byrd charged.

"By so doing he shows he is against our welfare," the Democratic candidate for governor declared. By research in developing better farm products and devising products from coal we can provide an opportunity for jobs to our young people, he pointed out.

Praises Teachers
Not only will our economic welfare be benefited, but our spiritual life will be blessed by such an outcome, Byrd said. Speaking of education, Byrd said our teachers need more pay in comparison with the money they invest in an education.

"If the Democratic party wins the election on Tuesday we can deliver on these plans," Allegheny and Garrett counties will benefit, Byrd declared.

Byrd also took occasion to blast McKeldin on the Maryland coal issue.

"If he had not vetoed a bill passed by the Legislature making mandatory the purchase of coal mined in this state the miners of this area would have employment," Byrd charged.

Byrd also blasted McKeldin for the Republican attack on the University of Maryland. He outlined his career as president of the university.

Cites Own Career
"I became president of the university in 1936 and retired as president last January. In 1936 there were less than 4,000 students; when I left the presidency, there were over 25,000 enrolled students in this country, while more than 8,700 men and women in military service were being taught by branches of the university established throughout the world, and this military personnel was being educated at no expense to the people of Maryland."

"In 1936 the physical plant of the university was worth only a few million dollars. When I retired the university's physical plant represented an investment of more than $45,000,000, of which about $23,000,000 came from the state funds, while the remaining $22,000,000 came from the federal government and from private endowments. Furthermore, the actual value of the university's physical plant at this time is estimated to be worth at least $56,000,000, the increase being due to increased building and construction costs in recent years."

"The net result is that the people of Maryland have spent approximately $23,000,000, and have received close to a sixty million dollar educational institution for their money."

"The standing of the various schools and departments of the university has never heretofore been questioned. The Medical School cannot accommodate the numerous students who annually seek admission, and many of the foremost doctors in Maryland graduated from it. The same is true of the Dental School; the Law School is becoming over-crowded, and students are flocking to the other graduate schools of the University."

"It is inconceivable to me that the Baltimore Sun, and particularly the Governor, should attempt for political purposes to belittle the present University of Maryland."

Byrd reminded his hearers that charges by Gov. McKeldin regarding the library at the university are without legitimacy because after William P. Lane, while governor, provided money to provide plans for a library Dr. Byrd was unable for three years to get any co-operation from McKeldin in getting this library aid allocated.

Byrd was introduced by Thomas B. Finan, chairman of the Allegheny County Democratic State Central Committee.

C. Ferdinand Sybert, of Howard County, the Democratic candidate for attorney general spoke briefly. He is at present state senator from his home county. William L. Wilson, candidate for state senator from Allegheny County on the Democratic ticket also spoke. The rest of the candidates were introduced. They include Leslie Clark and Charles Buskirk, for House of Delegates; Graydon Dunlap, for sheriff of Allegheny County and James Russell, of Mt. Savage, for county commissioner.

Prior to the dinner, Byrd and the various candidates toured Allegheny and Garrett counties featured by a luncheon meeting at Grantsville.

devoted exclusively to criticism of William L. Wilson and me.

"The editorial was prompted by certain questions which have been propounded by Mr. Wilson and me during the campaign. It appears that the incumbent Republican office holders have not been able to come up with satisfactory answers and the big guns of the Republican party have been called in to aid a sinking ship. The editorial dealt with Georges Creek Recreation Area and Maryland coal for Maryland institutions."

"Much has been said about Maryland coal for Maryland institutions in the past political campaigns in this County, but to date nothing has been done about the same. In the 1950 campaign, I advocated such a bill and had obtained Governor Lane's consent to the bill in the event it was passed in the legislature. Governor McKeldin had promised to sign such a bill also. In the 1951 session of the legislature SB No. 46 requiring the use of Maryland coal was passed by both Houses and on May 7, 1951, the bill was vetoed by Governor McKeldin.

"The controversy would have been concluded if Governor McKeldin had signed this bill or if in the subsequent legislative sessions in 1952, 1953 and 1954, a bill had been introduced by any member of the Allegheny County Delegation which would have met with the Governor's approval. However, it not being election year, no such bill was ever introduced and the controversy still rages and the Georges Creek miners still suffer."

"The treatment accorded the coal bill by the Allegheny County Delegation is indicative of the manner in which Allegheny County legislation has been handled by our delegation within the past four years."

"The small appropriation which Allegheny County received under the Republican 12 Year Road Program is a further reflection of the lack of representation we have had. Someone has been asleep at the switch and while other parts of the State will benefit greatly by the Roads Program, Allegheny County with its ineffective representation is slowly slipping into the role of a forgotten section."

Clark Takes Gov. McKeldin To Task On Coal Question

Leslie J. Clark, Democratic candidate for House of Delegates, on Saturday took Gov. McKeldin to task in the issue of state coal for state institutions.

In a speech he said: "It is gratifying to note that The Cumberland News in an editorial published Thursday, October 28, acknowledged weaknesses in the slate of candidates for the local offices. It is evident from the editorial there is much concern in the Republican headquarters concerning possibilities of defeat for several of their candidates for House of Delegates and for the State Senate and this has caused enough anxiety among the Republican high command to justify an editorial ergy Act by the 83d Congress has done much to remove the atom from the government monopoly under which it was being administered. It is now being administered with the utmost priority of personnel, we have made strides in one decade which might normally have required many years."

Electric Power Speedup
Indeed, the speed of expanding technology in the atomic sciences makes forecasts impossible. For example, only a little more than a year ago it was believed that while the production of commercial amounts of electrical energy from the heat of nuclear reactions seemed reasonably certain, it was years distant; and, further, that it was unlikely that private industry could afford to risk its capital in such undertakings until after the government had demonstrated with public funds that nuclear energy was economical. The facts have already overtaken this forecast.

I could not help but recall this at Shippingport, Pa., on Labor Day while I watched a bulldozer, started by the President by remote control from Denver, break ground for the first full-scale commercial type nuclear power plant. This venture will have a large share of private capital to make up its cost. There is every expectation that each year will see new plans of progressively improved design and that the year 1954 will be a landmark signaling the first large-scale investment by American industry in the peace-time application of atomic energy.

The revision of the Atomic Energy Act by the 83d Congress has done much to remove the atom from the government monopoly under which it was being administered. It is now being administered with the utmost priority of personnel, we have made strides in one decade which might normally have required many years."

Peaceful Applications
From its inception, the Atomic Energy Commission has been concerned with peaceful developments. In spite of this, many people are still unaware of the fact that we engage the services of hundreds of gifted men and women and spend large sums of money in order to expand our knowledge in fields far removed from weapons. These fields cover a wide area. They include medicine, biology, agriculture, chemistry, metallurgy and literally scores of new applications which will enrich the lives of all of us.

The progress already made is clear evidence that the awesome destructive power of the bomb can be transmuted and, if we are permitted to do so, will be transmuted into a peaceful force for universal good.

We who work in the Atomic Energy Commission look forward to the day when the atomic materials now in the arsenals of the nations will be used only for good. This was one feature of the inspiring proposal made by President Eisenhower last December and which he has more recently reaffirmed that he intends to pursue — with the co-operation of the Soviet government if possible; without that co-operation if necessary.

It should be encouraging to all peoples of the world that the United States is determined to press forward on such a program for world betterment. Despite all obstacles we will continue our work confident that eventually our peaceful purposes will become manifest to all and that our program will receive the support of like-minded people.

Attention LABOR

You are being led to believe, in the present political campaign, that ALL of organized Labor is supporting the Democratic candidates and that the present Republican Administration is detrimental to labor.

I, as a former representative of the Legislative Committee of one of the largest locals in Western Maryland take exception to this. I have spent many weeks at sessions of the Legislature in Annapolis as a labor representative and I wish to state that Labor could not have better representation than they have in men like Senator Kimble, Delegates Reed, Driscoll, See, Cook and Kelly. These men gave me full cooperation each time I was a Labor Representative and never once did they vote in opposition to Labor on Bills I lobbied for.

I believe that every laboring man should endorse the entire

Byrd Promises Better Roads For This Area

Dr. H. C. Byrd told a gathering of several hundred Democrats at a final campaign speech Saturday at the Port Cumberland Hotel that his program envisions better roads for Allegany and Garrett counties, and also an improvement in the economic conditions.

Taking a crack at the highway situation here, Byrd said roads will be built to attract both the tourists and shopping public of nearby states.

Farming products and the coal industry will be aided through a combined program of research and advertisement of this area's agriculture and other resources. As an example he mentioned the maple sugar of Garrett County.

"Much of the so-called Vermont maple sugar actually is bought here in bulk and then reshipped back in the form of maple syrup," he pointed out.

Another resource which he mentioned "is the human resource." Too many young people are moving to metropolitan centers in order to obtain employment he said. "This is a loss we can ill afford," he added.

Gov. McKeldin is opposed to the Democratic platform plan of having an Industrial and Economic Commission to further the state's welfare, Byrd charged.

Clark Takes Gov. McKeldin To Task On Coal Question

Leslie J. Clark, Democratic candidate for House of Delegates, on Saturday took Gov. McKeldin to task in the issue of state coal for state institutions.

Bad Health Proves A Costly Matter

Two-thirds of adult Americans are healthy, happy, and reasonably content with their jobs. One-third are ill, unhappy, and dissatisfied. And it is the one-third who crowd the divorce courts, hospitals, doctors' waiting rooms, who overload the welfare agencies, and who put a staggering load on industry in costly absenteeism and costly accidents.

That's a summary of the facts set forth in a specific paper read recently before the American Public Health Association, meeting in Buffalo. Two physicians, Dr. Lawrence H. Hinkle Jr. and Dr. Norman Plummer, studied two large groups of workers, one made up of 1,297 female telephone operators and the other comprised of 1,527 male telephone craftsmen. They found:

That the average well woman had been disabled 33 days during the previous 28.8 years, while the average ill woman had been disabled 1,209 days during 25.9 years.

That the average well woman had less than one major illness, compared with 10 for the average ill woman; only 16 minor illnesses as against 62; and only one accident as against seven.

That the average well man had 19 days of sickness during 27 working years and the average ill man had 581 days during 29 years. The ill man had 15 times as many minor illnesses as the well man, eight times as many major illnesses, twice as many accidents, and four times as many surgical operations.

The two doctors found that health correlates closely with the individuals relationship to his environment. Health, happy home life, satisfaction with the job all go together. And if this discovery sounds like something we already knew, or ought to know, their conclusion still makes sense. It is that since the unhealthy, unhappy, maladjusted one-third are extremely costly to society, it would be highly rewarding to dig out the causes for their condition and see what can be done to help them.

Here is a challenge to all, and particularly to practitioners in the field of group health.

These Days

The European Community

If Western Europe can find a way to a voluntary community of nations, it may be possible to build a force capable of withstanding the Communist menace. Many efforts have been made in European history to achieve such a union by coercion, by wars and by the numerous agreements that follow wars. To succeed, however, surely in our era, such a union must be voluntary and must be based on acknowledged self-interest.

Most of the first steps in this direction have failed, but the comparative success of the European Community for Coal and Steel can give hope that something substantial may be achieved in other fields until Western Europe has found a workable formula which limits sovereignty in particular instances while not violating nationalistic pride in general. The difficulties are stupendous but in the face of the Russian menace, they ought not to be insuperable. Fear can accomplish much when it is real and while many Europeans underestimate the Russians on the assumption that the United States will always defend Europe, most of them know what Communist infiltration has done in their countries.

The European Community for Coal and Steel is, in effect, a government, operating with federal powers on behalf of Belgium, France, West Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands. It might be recalled that the Belgian Relief, which Herbert Hoover operated during World War I, was permitted many privileges of a separate government until the United States entered the war, but that was a matter of convenience, not a voluntary decision to solve the basic economic problem of about 160,000,000 people, which is what the European Community involves.

This European Community, which grew out of the Schuman Plan, operates within its particular jurisdiction with sovereign powers, including executive, legislative and judicial branches. It crosses national boundaries as though they did not exist. Limited to coal, iron and steel at present, its organization could be expanded and its method applied to other commodities and even to other problems. If the plan can work for coal and steel, why not for electrification or communications? Why not in many non-political fields?

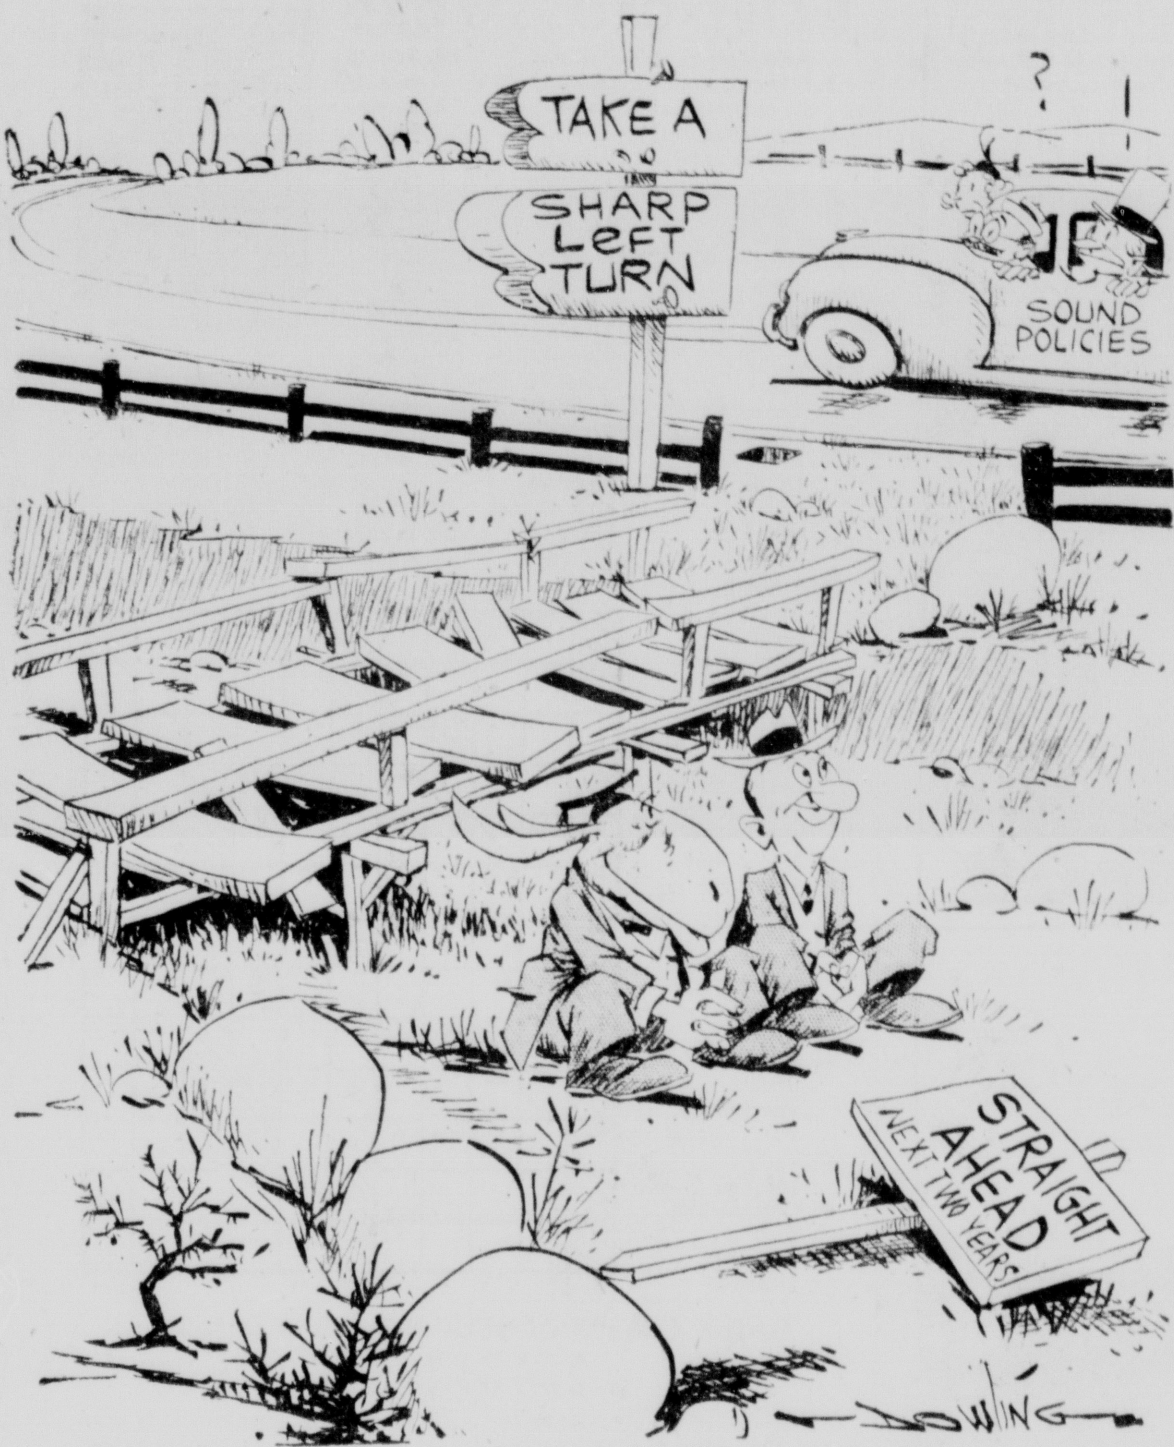

Western Europe is an area of comparatively small countries which now face mass populations in the United States, and the Soviet Universal State, which includes China and may, someday, include India by cordial affiliation. While the size of population is not the sole criterion upon which to base a judgement as to the strength of an area, the rapidity of industrialization in the Soviet Universal State must be considered as altering the world economic position of Western Europe. Russia now produces about 38,000,000 tons of steel a year, a figure that is enormous by European standards. Coolies can be taught to operate modern, automatic machinery as competently as highly-skilled handicraftsmen, whose skills are lost in the battle with precision machinery. The machine has, in fact, altered the relationship between exporting and importing countries.

In the struggle for survival, the European nations will be forced to reconsider their positions in a world where the Flemish weaver's wares are only for luxuries because the spindle and the loom can turn out goods anywhere, attended by almost anyone, at varying labor costs. Years ago, Manchester ceased to be a match for Osaka, and now every country seeks industrialization, the Egypt of Nasser, I presume, planning to surround the pyramids with cotton mills. While certain countries continue to specialize, the fact that once machines are available anything can be made anywhere cannot be ignored.

If West Europe can become an industrial entity of 160,000,000 people, without customs barriers and varieties of money, without import and export quotas, it could develop the industrial capacity and the purchasing power of the United States. The European Community for Coal and Steel is a first fairly successful step in that direction. It will be watched with the greatest interest, because its success could mean a strengthening of our own country in its struggle against the Soviet Universal State. Whatever is done, in the diplomatic or economic fields, to lessen nationalistic tensions or to overcome historic prejudices which, if they ever served, no longer have any virtue, must be regarded as a tremendous step forward. Such a union as the European Community may even lower our bill for European aid.

Someone's Been Fooling With The Road Signs

GOP Appears To Have Recovered The Ball Politically

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON — In retrospect, it is clear that the Republicans fumbled the ball at the very beginning of this campaign. Now, as the campaign ends, it begins to seem possible that the Republicans will recover the ball—but in a highly dangerous way.

The Republicans fumbled when, needed by such Democrats as Gen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, they denounced all talk of economic trouble as "gloom and doom," and loudly proclaimed that everything was just Jim dandy on the economic front. This gave the Democrats precisely the opportunity they were looking for.

In a way, of course, Republican boasts of prosperity were justified. Most of the important economic indices—national income, total employment, and so on—remain at boom time levels. But the fact also remains that everything is not just Jim dandy.

Very large voting groups have been hurt at least to some degree. There may be only three million unemployed at the moment, for example. But estimates of the number who have suffered periods of unemployment this year run as high as 12 million. And the number of people who have been worried at one time or another about being unemployed this year must run much higher than that.

Farm Revolt Not Detectable

Or take the farmers. Farm politics precisely illustrates the spotty but nevertheless very great influence of the pocketbook issue in this election. If there is a universal farm revolt under way against this administration, it is not detectable to the human eye. The Benson farm program is not even really a dominant issue except in the dairy areas and some of the wheat states, where price cuts plainly marked "courtesy of Benson" have been taken by the farmers.

But in general, where the farmers have been hurt, even by such impersonal causes as drought, they are angry, and they are inclined to take their anger out on the administration. Conversely, where they have done well—as in the corn and hog areas of, say, Iowa or Illinois—a majority of the farmers are pleased with themselves and with the administration.

But the point is that there have been enough wounded pocketbook nerves in the country to give the Democrats much their best issue—and the Republicans obligingly made the issue better by pretending, at first, that it did not exist.

The other Democratic issues—

the "give away" of natural resources, the "rich man's tax bill," and all the rest—simply fed and sustained the main, central, economic issue. And the ineptness of the Republican response made it especially easy for the Democrats to claim that they were the "party of economic progress and security" and to picture the Republicans as the "party of economic privilege."

As the campaign has progressed, the Republicans have desperately searched for an issue with which to counteract the Democrats' largely phony "economic issue."

At first, the Republicans thought that the President's coattails would carry them home. Some Democrats thought so, too, and tried to scramble aboard. But the old rule that a President cannot transfer his popularity effectively to local candidates has held good.

The War Party

Then, particularly after the New York poll which scared the daylights out of the Republican high command, some Republican orators—conspicuously Vice President Richard Nixon—tried to revive "the Communist issue." It had new trimmings, especially the disingenuous "security risk firings" gimmick. But McCarthy is discredited, and the issue is old and tired.

Now as the campaign draws to its close, the Republicans have at last found their issue. It is the "peace issue." It was a natural Democratic cry of "special privilege" by calling the Democrats "the war party." It was no doubt natural to go further, and to indulge in such oratorical flights as "the blood of 140,000 American boys on every Democratic dollar."

But now the Republicans are going further still. Innumerable campaign orators, including figures high in the administration, are coming precious close to promising "peace in our time." There is not much doubt that this is a politically effective promise. These reporters have been conducting a long distance telephone poll of a number of states, and in almost every case they have been told that the Republicans have been moving up in the last few days. The explanation offered is almost always the same—"the peace issue is beginning to take hold." But although it can be politically effective in the short run to promise peace on our time, it can also be dangerous in the long run—as Neville Chamberlain discovered in his sorrow.

Thumb-Sucking Habit Usually Vanishes In Third Year

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The thumb sucking tendency usually increases during the first year of life, decreases in the second, and disappears in the third; thereafter it is considered abnormal. The ability to nurse improves during the first week and becomes so automatic the tyke is likely to suck on anything placed on the lips or in the mouth.

But during the first six months, fast or thumb sucking is unusual unless the hand accidentally strikes the mouth when the infant is thrashing about or tense from hunger. In the second half of the first year the tot will bring almost anything to the mouth, including the thumb. This reflex begins to wane during the second year except when the child is tired, frustrated, angry, or afraid.

Dr. A. W. Sullivan, a Rochester, N. Y., pediatrician, studied the problem thoroughly and noted that the babies who nursed frequently or were allowed to use a pacifier in the first year of life, usually refrained from thumb sucking during the second or third year.

Other authorities have had the same experience. Dr. David Levy, for example, observed 112 children, one year or older, of whom 28 were thumb suckers. These tots had not been allowed to nurse for more than 15 minutes and were taken from the breast while still hungry. The mother had her own ideas along this line and believed in feeding "by the clock."

Children, who did not suck the thumb, however, were fed frequently, especially at night. Some had been provided with pacifiers during the first year.

These studies stress the importance of allowing the youngster to satisfy the normal sucking instinct when the reflex is at its height. When this is done the child is not inclined to suck his thumb unless disturbed psychologically, at which time he reverts to the infantile reaction. The habit can be avoided by encouraging the boy or girl to mature normally.

Thumb sucking also is a dental problem. When it continues after eruption of the permanent teeth, it is likely to disturb the bite and displace incisors and molars. The upper front teeth are pushed forward and the lowers backward, toward the side of the thumb sucked.

If the habit is given up before the toddler reaches five, the deformity corrects itself. After this age, treatment is difficult as the dentist is confronted with a psychiatric problem as well as an oral defect. This is understandable be-

Texas Republican Accused By Pearson Of Flirting With Hatch Act Violation

By Drew Pearson

News Through "Straws"

Getting Around Hatch Act

Lawyers who have examined Porter's unusual demand say that it definitely violates the spirit of the Hatch Act, if not the letter. The Hatch Act prohibits any official from soliciting political contributions from federal employees and further prohibits anyone from soliciting on government premises.

Porter got around the letter of the law by using the U. S. mails, not soliciting on the premises. The wording of his letter, however, as published below, seems to come awfully close to the Hatch Act. Written on stationery of the "Republican Party of Texas" and dated September 28, 1954, the letter follows:

"As you are probably aware, our state headquarters, which processes all of the appointments to federal positions in Texas, must be supported by contributions. In addition to that, we have to raise funds for our congressional and legislative candidates. It is vital that we give President Eisenhower a Republican controlled Congress, and we have an excellent chance to elect some congressmen in Texas.

"The actual cost of processing an appointment in Texas is substantial and must be paid for out of party funds. Our only source of revenue is contributions, and we do not feel that we are asking too much in suggesting a contribution from you in the amount of . . .

"Contrary to widespread misinterpretation, there is no restriction in the so-called Hatch Act or any other federal regulation against making contributions to a political party in a federal officeholder's name. There is, however, a restriction against soliciting such contributions at a federal place of employment. Officeholders are also prohibited from soliciting such contributions themselves.

"I will appreciate it, if you will give us a prompt reply, as only a few weeks are left before election day. Please make checks payable to: Harris T. Gregg, Treasurer, 4019 Montrose Boulevard, Houston 6, Texas.

"Thanking you, and with best wishes, I am

"Sincerely,
"H. J. PORTER"

There's been a lot of prompting among the staff of the Atomic Energy Commission as to how they should pronounce the name of their chairman, Adm. Lewis Strauss. The Kuhn Loeb banking partner, who now runs the AEC in such a highhanded manner, does not like to have his name mispronounced. He demands that the pronunciation be as in "Straws."

The other day, Mary Smyth, wife of the famed scientist, Henry D. Smyth, who has just resigned from the AEC because he could not take Admiral Strauss's domination, was sitting at dinner beside New York Times correspondent Arthur Krock, chief biographer for Admiral Strauss.

"How do you feel?" she asked Krock.

"I feel fine," was the reply.

"Are you sure?" pressed Mrs. Smyth.

"Yes, why do you ask?"

"Because I heard you were ill."

"What made you think that?"

"I heard you had been taking all your nourishment through 'straws'."

Congressman Diplomat

Though it didn't get into the headlines, one of the unofficial diplomats who helped to smooth out the important Trieste problem was Democratic Congressman John Blatnik of Minnesota, an American of Yugoslav descent.

Three times during the war, Major Blatnik was parachuted behind German lines into Yugoslavia where he worked with the Yugoslav underground against the Nazis.

Last year Congressman Blatnik happened to be in Yugoslavia at the time the United States and England pulled their tragic boner demanding—without advance notification—that Tito evacuate Trieste. Following that ultimatum, Tito mobilized troops around Yugoslavia, and Yugoslav public opinion reached a fever pitch.

Blatnik, who was on the scene, immediately called on Tito, persuaded him to enter into direct negotiations with Italy. Then he flew by military plane to NATO headquarters in Paris to report to Gen. Alfred Gruenther. His conferences helped to get Yugoslavia back into the groove as far as diplomatic talks were concerned.

Speculators Needed

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass. — I have always encouraged the safe investment of money through buying stocks in well-known, standard, dividend-paying companies, plus diversification amongst a large number of companies. That is why I have favored the investment trusts and mutual funds for those with only a little money. These should give safety and security.

The nation as a whole, however, may get top-heavy with "safe investments." Too many people cannot live on the dividends of old-established corporations. Some people must be willing to take some risks by putting some money into new enterprises.

Who Built American Industries?

During the past few weeks I have been studying the industrial history of New England. Conservative "investors" did not build the cotton factories, the paper mills, the woolen plants of New England. These were built by men willing to take risks. The sailing ships which set forth from Boston, Portsmouth, Gloucester, Salem, and New Bedford to all parts of the world—without charts or steam—and even before the days of lighthouses—were built by "speculators," not by "investors."

The Securities and Exchange Commission has done a good thing for conservative investors and the big, established companies; but whether the commission has done well for the nation as a whole is debatable. America today needs more speculators.

Pioneering Encouraged

It is said that the Democrats inaugurated most of the new tax law changes to help the sick and aged. The Republicans, however, are responsible for the features of the 1954 tax law which encourage invention, industry, and young concerns. During the Roosevelt administration, business was treated with a certain disdain. The New Deal politicians and professors, who had no experience with business, wrote the laws.

Such legislation has helped the unfortunate who were unable to work, but it has discouraged the formation of new companies to provide future employment. It has been very difficult for young men to get the capital or to save enough from earnings to start a new business. It has been like trying to run a church without a Sunday School—or have a family without raising children. The new 1954 tax law makes it easier for any young man of good character to start a new business. It also encourages older investors to take some risks by starting new enterprises, prospecting for uranium and other rare metals, and providing future employment for the next generation.

What Utopia Means To Me

Mrs. Babson and I have founded three successful colleges—Babson Institute for men at Babson Park, Mass., Webber College for women at Webber Park, Fla., and a third college in the center of the United States, at Eureka, Kas. This third school is intended to help worthy young people with vision do new things which their parents or friends may think impossible.

As I meet the men who are doing big things today, I find that—as a rule—they did not come from big cities. Most of them were brought up on farms. Their college was the wood box and the corn field. They were obliged to fight severe heat in summer and cold in winter. They thought that life consisted of taking risks with horses, cattle, and storms. Steam heat, air conditioning, and fluffy colleges may make good investors, but these modern luxuries do not teach men to take risks. A greater willingness to risk is the need of America today.

One More Thought

Young people who are born without luxury or without money and who are struggling for an education should remember this: You have as much time as anyone in the world. No president, prime minister, professor, or captain of industry has more time than you have.

I forecast that some day every reader will realize that time is worth more than money. My appeal this week is that you use a fair proportion of your time in taking risks for the good of the nation.

Years ago, Manchester ceased to be a match for Osaka, and now every country seeks industrialization, the Egypt of Nasser, I presume, planning to surround the pyramids with cotton mills. While certain countries continue to specialize, the fact that once machines are available anything can be made anywhere cannot be ignored.

If West Europe can become an industrial entity of 160,000,000 people, without customs barriers and varieties of money, without import and export quotas, it could develop the industrial capacity and the purchasing power of the United States. The European Community for Coal and Steel is a first fairly successful step in that direction. It will be watched with the greatest interest, because its success could mean a strengthening of our own country in its struggle against the Soviet Universal State. Whatever is done, in the diplomatic or economic fields, to lessen nationalistic tensions or to overcome historic prejudices which, if they ever served, no longer have any virtue, must be regarded as a tremendous step forward. Such a union as the European Community may even lower our bill for European aid.

Someone's Been Fooling With The Road Signs

GOP Appears To Have Recovered The Ball Politically

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

WASHINGTON — In retrospect, it is clear that the Republicans fumbled the ball at the very beginning of this campaign. Now, as the campaign ends, it begins to seem possible that the Republicans will recover the ball—but in a highly dangerous way.

The Republicans fumbled when, needed by such Democrats as Gen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, they denounced all talk of economic trouble as "gloom and doom," and loudly proclaimed that everything was just Jim dandy on the economic front. This gave the Democrats precisely the opportunity they were looking for.

In a way of course, Republican boasts of prosperity were justified. Most of the important economic indices—national income, total employment, and so on—remain at boom time levels. But the fact also remains that everything is not just Jim dandy.

Very large voting groups have been hurt at least to some degree. There may be only three million unemployed at the moment, for example. But estimates of the number who have suffered periods of unemployment this year run as high as 12 million. And the number of people who have been worried at one time or another about being unemployed this year must run much higher than that.

Farm Revolt Not Detectable

Or take the farmers. Farm politics precisely illustrates the spotty but nevertheless very great influence of the pocketbook issue in this election. If there is a universal farm revolt under way against this administration, it is not detectable to the human eye. The Benson farm program is not even really a dominant issue except in the dairy areas and some of the wheat states, where price cuts plainly marked "courtesy of Benson" have been taken by the farmers.

But in general, where the farmers have been hurt, even by such impersonal causes as drought, they are angry, and they are inclined to take their anger out on the administration. Conversely, where they have done well—as in the corn and hog areas of, say, Iowa or Illinois—a majority of the farmers are pleased with themselves and with the administration.

But the point is that there have been enough wounded pocketbook nerves in the country to give the Democrats much their best issue—and the Republicans obligingly made the issue better by pretending, at first, that it did not exist.

The other Democratic issues—

the "give away" of natural resources, the "rich man's tax bill," and all the rest—simply fed and sustained the main, central, economic issue. And the ineptness of the Republican response made it especially easy for the Democrats to claim that they were the "party of economic progress and security" and to picture the Republicans as the "party of economic privilege."

As the campaign has progressed, the Republicans have desperately searched for an issue with which to counteract the Democrats' largely phony "economic issue."

The "war party" has held good.

Then, particularly after the New York poll which scared the daylight out of the Republican high command, some Republican orators—conspicuously Vice President Richard Nixon—tried to revive "the Communist issue." It had new trimmings, especially the disingenuous "security risk firings" gimmick. But McCarthy is discredited, and the issue is old and tired.

Now as the campaign draws to its close, the Republicans have at last found their issue. It is the "peace issue." It was a natural Republican response to answer the Democratic cries of "special privilege" by calling the Democrats "the war party." It was no doubt natural to go further, and to indulge in such oratorical flights as "the blood of 140,000 American boys on every Democratic dollar."

But now the Republicans are going further still. Innumerable campaign orators, including figures high in the administration, are coming precious close to promising "peace in our time." There is not much doubt that this is a politically effective promise.

These reporters have been conducting a long distance telephone poll of a number of states, and in almost every case they have been told that the Republicans have been moving up in the last few days. The explanation offered is almost always the same—"the peace issue is beginning to take hold." But although it can be politically effective in the short run to promise peace on our time, it can also be dangerous in the long run—as Neville Chamberlain discovered to his sorrow.

Revival of chin spinach would release us from the slavery of shaving but, somehow, we'd prefer to scrape along with things as they are.

Zadok Dumkopf says air travel is too disillusioning. He flew over Niagara Falls and now reports it looked just like a leaky faucet.

An average citizen, according to Milt, the sterling printer, is a fellow who can't wait to hear the election results coming in and then, by noon of the next day, complains he's fed up with 'em.

A truly obstinate man, says Grandpappy Jenkins, is a man who not only holds opinions but, in turn, is held by them.

A popular sport in China, we read, is cricket fighting. In fact, we understand they're bugs about it.

While on the subject of China, a book on libraries of the world reveals that the so-called Chinese Imperial Cookbook comprises 96 volumes with a total weight of more than a ton. Quite a heavy diet!

In the Yorkshire village of Keld, England, two brothers, both teetotalers, bought the only saloon in town, then promptly closed it for good. That's a pretty drastic—and expensive—way of practicing what they preach.

The European branch of the Mutual Admiralty Society is at it again. Greece Prime Minister Alexander Papagos and Spain's Francisco Franco have just awarded each other a medal.

Thumb-Sucking Habit Usually Vanishes In Third Year

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The thumb sucking tendency usually increases during the first year of life, decreases in the second, and disappears in the third; thereafter it is considered abnormal. The ability to nurse improves during the first week and becomes so automatic the tyke is likely to suck on anything placed on the lips or in the mouth.

But during the first six months, fast or thumb sucking is unusual unless the hand accidentally strikes the mouth when the infant is thrashing about or tense from hunger. In the second half of the first year the tot will bring almost anything to the mouth, including the thumb. This reflex begins to wane during the second year except when the child is tired, frustrated, angry, or afraid.

Dr. A. W. Sullivan, a Rochester, N. Y., pediatrician, studied the problem thoroughly and noted that the babies who nursed frequently or were allowed to use a pacifier in the first year of life, usually refrained from thumb sucking during the second or third year.

Other authorities have had the same experience. Dr. David Levy, for example, observed 112 children, one year or older, of whom 28 were thumb suckers. These tots had not been allowed to nurse for more than 15 minutes and were taken from the breast while still hungry. The mother had her own ideas along this line and believed in feeding "by the clock."

Children, who did not suck the thumb, however, were fed frequently, especially at night. Some had been provided with pacifiers during the first year.

These studies stress the importance of allowing the youngster to satisfy the normal sucking instinct when the reflex is at its height. When this is done the child is not inclined to suck his thumb unless disturbed psychologically, at which time he reverts to the infantile reaction. The habit can be avoided by encouraging the boy or girl to mature normally.

Thumb sucking also is a dental problem. When it continues after eruption of the permanent teeth, it is likely to disturb the bite and displace incisors and molars. The upper front teeth are pushed forward and the lowers backward, toward the side of the thumb sucked.

If the habit is given up before the toddler reaches five, the deformity corrects itself. After this age, treatment is difficult as the dentist is confronted with a psychiatric problem as well as an oral defect. This is understandable be-

Texas Republican Accused By Pearson Of Flirting With Hatch Act Violation

By Drew Pearson

Getting Around Hatch Act

WASHINGTON — Jack Porter, the charming and energetic Texan who first plumped for Eisenhower, has sent out an amazing letter demanding money from federal job-holders in his state. The letter comes close to the border line drawn by the Hatch Act against "macing"—forcing contributions from officeholders.

Porter is a wealthy Houston oil man and Republican national committeeman who went to see Eisenhower in Paris in the spring of 1952 and brought back word that Ike would be against the Supreme Court on tidelands oil. Despite the fact that the Supreme Court had ruled against Texas, Louisiana and California, General Eisenhower wrote Jack Porter a letter taking the opposite stand. This was one reason why Texas went overwhelmingly for Ike two years ago and why so much Texas money has poured into the GOP campaign chest.

Today Porter is writing letters to every federal officeholder in the Lone Star State demanding more money—on the excuse that it is costly to "process" a federal job. Just what Porter means by "processing" a job is not explained, but some officeholders have construed it to mean that if they don't contribute Porter will "process" them out of their jobs.

Furthermore, he names the exact amount he wants them to donate. One postmistress who makes only $150 a month was told she should contribute $175. U. S. attorneys, collectors of internal revenue and other top officials are being told to kick in as much as $500.

At first, the Republicans thought that the President's coattails would carry them home. Some Democrats thought so too, and tried to scramble aboard. But the old rule that a President cannot transfer his popularity effectively to local candidates has held good. The War Party

Then, particularly after the New York poll which scared the daylight out of the Republican high command, some Republican orators—conspicuously Vice President Richard Nixon—tried to revive "the Communist issue." It had new trimmings, especially the disingenuous "security risk firings" gimmick. But McCarthy is discredited, and the issue is old and tired.

Now as the campaign draws to its close, the Republicans have at last found their issue. It is the "peace issue." There's been a lot of prompting among the staff of the Atomic Energy Commission as to how they should pronounce the name of their chairman, Adm. Lewis Strauss. The Kuhn Loeb banking partner, who now runs the AEC in such a high handed manner, does not like to have his name mispronounced. He demands that the pronunciation be as in "Straus."

The other day, Mary Smyth, wife of the famed scientist, Henry D. Smyth, who has just resigned from the AEC because he could not take Admiral Strauss's domination, was sitting at dinner beside New York Times correspondent Arthur Krock, chief apologist for Admiral Strauss.

"How do you feel?" she asked Krock. "I feel fine," was the reply. "Are you sure?" pressed Mrs. Smyth. "Yes, why do you ask?" "Because I heard you were ill."

"What made you think that?" "I heard you had been taking all your nourishment through 'straws'."

Congressman Diplomat

Though it didn't get into the headlines, one of the unofficial diplomats who helped to smooth out the important Trieste problem was Democratic Congressman John Blatnik of Minnesota, an American of Yugoslav descent.

Three times during the war, Major Blatnik was parachuted behind German lines into Yugoslavia where he worked with the Yugoslav underground against the Nazis.

Last year Congressman Blatnik happened to be in Yugoslavia at the time the United States and England pulled their tragic boner demanding—without advance notification—that Tito evacuate Trieste. Following that ultimatum, Tito mobilized troops around Yugoslavia, and Yugoslav public opinion reached a fever pitch.

Blatnik, who was on the scene, immediately called on Tito, persuaded him to enter into direct negotiations with Italy. Then he flew by military plane to NATO headquarters in Paris to report to Gen. Alfred Gruenther. His conferences helped to get Yugoslavia back into the groove as far as diplomatic talks were concerned.

Speculators Needed

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass. — I have always encouraged the safe investment of money through buying stocks in well-known, standard, dividend-paying companies, plus diversification amongst a large number of companies. That is why I have favored the investment trusts and mutual funds for those with only a little money. These should give safety and security.

The nation as a whole, however, may get top-heavy with "safe investments." Too many people cannot live on the dividends of old-established corporations. Some people must be willing to take some risks by putting some money into new enterprises.

Who Built American Industries?

During the past few weeks I have been studying the industrial history of New England. Conservative "investors" did not build the cotton factories, the paper mills, the woolen plants of New England. These were built by men willing to take risks. The sailing ships which set forth from Boston, Portsmouth, Gloucester, Salem, and New Bedford to all parts of the world—without charts or steam—and even before the days of lighthouses—were built by "speculators," not by "investors."

The Securities and Exchange Commission has done a good thing for conservative investors and the big, established companies; but whether the commission has done well for the nation as a whole is debatable. America today needs more speculators.

Pioneering Encouraged

It is said that the Democrats inaugurated most of the new tax law changes to help the sick and aged. The Republicans, however, are responsible for the features of the 1954 tax law which encourage invention, industry, and young concerns. During the Roosevelt administration, business was treated with a certain disdain. The New Deal politicians and professors, who had no experience with business, wrote the laws.

Such legislation has helped the unfortunate who were unable to work, but it has discouraged the formation of new companies to provide future employment. It has

One More Thought

Young people who are born without luxury or without money and who are struggling for an education should remember this: You have as much time as anyone in the world. No president, prime minister, professor, or captain of industry has more time than you have.

I forecast that some day every reader will realize that time is worth more than money. My appeal this week is that you use a fair proportion of your time in taking risks for the good of the nation.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(While Louella O. Parsons takes a short rest her column will be written by Dorothy Manners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31 (INS) — The honeymooning Guy Madison and Sheila Connolly arrived over the weekend after a brief honeymoon in Florida only slightly soured by the Mexican judge who married them bringing up the legality of their marriage.

"I was married under my legal name of Robert Cecil Moseley," Guy shrugs it off. "What did he expect — Wild Bill Hickok?"

This off his chest, Guy told me long distance before departing Florida. "I'm signing immediately with Ed and Will Nassour to star in 'The Beast of Hollow Mountain.'"

"It's an unusual combination of live action and animation film in which I play a cowboy who tangles with a prehistoric monster."

It also gets the Technicolor and CinemaScope treatment with a United Artists release.

Guy's salary is his biggest to date — $125,000.

What a "natural" it would be to see Joan and Ann together again for the first time since the unforgettable "Mildred Pierce" which won an Oscar for Crawford and hoisted Ann to stardom as her ungrateful daughter.

In "The Queen Bee," Ann would play Joan's niece, who is nice, the witchiness being all on the other side.

Vanessa Brown, who has been a much sicker girl during the past few months than anyone realizes, slipped quietly into town and is at the Bel Air Hotel.

Hollywood seems to be bad news to this girl who manages to click big on Broadway but can't get going in movietown. She's upset over the personal problem of ending her marriage to plastic surgeon Robert Franklyn and equally depressed over losing what might have been her big screen chance with C. B. De Mille in "The Ten Commandments."

Still under medical care for acute nervousness, Vanessa hopes to settle her affairs here without further troubles — and then back East where her luck may change.

Hollywood in shorts: Results of Janet Leigh's physical check-up — the gal gets thinner, thinner, thinner — is a slight case of anemia.

Jim Mahoney and his wife (he's one of the nicest of the P.A.'s and beats the tom-toms for Debbie Reynolds) expect their first baby in the early summer.

Mrs. Robert Young has the room next to LOP's in the hospital where both are bedded with the virus and they swap flowers and notes.

The sight of the week: James Mason lunching all by his lonesome at the Beverly Hills Hotel at a table set party-style with the best silver and most flowers. Nope, he wasn't saluting himself — it's just that the head waiter is his most ardent fan.

Marlene Dietrich, who's been getting the sniffs from that wind machine in Las Vegas, may soon have a show-a-month TV contract with NBC to keep her warm.

Mary Benny, still dead scared of "live" TV, will do one more show with Jack, but you can bet it'll be on film!

While I was vacationing, I caught Doris Day and Marty Melcher seeing a show every night in Las Vegas, some of them two or three times. Don't tell me Doris isn't toying with the idea of the glamor sajon moola.

Poor Patti Lewis, Jerry's wife, just out of the hospital for minor surgery, returned to St. John's this morning for more of the same.

Dorothy McGuire and Lee Marvin rating raves in "Joan of Arc at the Stake" in the local San Francisco Opera presentation — Dorothy in the same role that got Ingrid Bergman royally roasted in Europe.

Something new for Lana Turner — she's losing too much weight on "The Sea Chase" in Honolulu. John Wayne is still having trouble with his ear.

That's all today.

Board Discusses Plans To Enclose Infirmary Porch

Plans for enclosing the second story porch of the Allegany County Infirmary were discussed Friday by the Board of County Commissioners.

Blueprints for the project have been drawn and the board checked these at the session Friday. Patients able to sit in a wheel chair and those who are ambulatory have been using the open porch the last few years.

William H. Lemmert, president of the board, said if enough money remains in the county building repair account the work will be done. It would be started in about a month and estimated cost ranges from $8,000 to $10,000.

The porch is approximately 40 by 50 feet and could accommodate about 50 patients at one time. Enclosing the porch would eliminate crowding of hallways by TRAINED MEN FIND THEY CAN EARN $400 OR MORE A MONTH FOR LIFE!

Unlimited future — independence — possible for those qualified.

AMAZING TESTIMONIALS — Many Trained & Started In Spare Time At Home!

BILLS! BILLS! BILLS! All over America men are slaving away on dead-end jobs with nothing to look forward to but debts, unemployment — a blank wall! Year after endless year, the same old routine . . . up at daylight, gulp a cup of coffee, rush off to punch the clock on some meaningless job . . . come home at night worn out, hopeless . . . and for what? No matter how hard they work, it's still the same old rut. No one at work appreciates their efforts. No one rewards them with increased earnings. They can't enjoy even the necessities, let alone some of the luxuries! And what can these men possibly hope for in their old age?

MANY INDUSTRIES ARE AT A STANDSTILL! The pitiful part of this story is these same men — and their families — live in the hope that somehow "things are going to be different when the company expands." The sad truth is that the "company" and the industry of which the company is a part, may never expand! Hundreds and hundreds of industries today are at the absolute limit of their growth due to scientific developments that have outmoded them! For example—the steam locomotive and the propeller-driven airplane—which are on the way out! Opportunities in stagnant industries are bound to be limited! Wages must be cut to the bone! Men who stay in such industries are literally throwing away the best years of their lives — committing vocational suicide!

GREATEST OPPORTUNITY NOW HERE . . .

EVERY GENERATION HAS HAD INDUSTRIAL GIANTS . . . but today's giant industry is so much greater — so much more awe-inspiring — so far beyond the average person's imagination that there cannot be any fair comparison what-ever! This is IT — man's greatest dream brought into the living room to educate — to entertain — to inform millions. The amazing thing is that this greatest opportunity of the age — this one big chance for the average man to become independent and prosperous — awaits any man willing to make a sincere effort toward self-betterment!

MODERN GOLD RUSH IS ON T.E.L.E.V.I.S.I.O.N. — yes, television — the magic word of the century — television is the answer for thousands of bread winners who have had to barrel "out by" on the skimpiest salaries — the poorest working conditions — the uncertainties, fears, worries of the future!

FACTS! FACTS! HISTORY MAKING! UNBELIEVABLE!

It's hard to believe that less than ten years ago television existed only as an experiment — a wild dream . . . a hope! Today 30,000,000 homes are equipped with television sets and receive daily programs from over 400 television stations! By 1959 it is expected over 1,000 TV stations will be on the air — over 2,000 by 1965!

COLOR TELEVISION has barely reached the commercial stage, but is leaping ahead and may replace the "old fashioned" black and white telecasts within a few years. Yet, television is barely out of its infancy and the best years are still ahead!

OPPORTUNITIES IN EVERY PHASE OF TV UNLIMITED FOR AMBITIOUS MEN

Hundreds of jobs are waiting throughout the nation for trained and qualified television personnel. These jobs include television-radio service, TV receiver manufacturing and design, TV shop service managers, TV studio technicians and police, fire, harbor and forestry radio technicians. Every day more and more firms are seeking men with "know-how" for immediate placement at above-average salaries. In addition, many thousands of trained and qualified men are leaving salaried jobs for television service and repair businesses of their own — and more independence than they have ever known — more security than they ever dreamed possible.

WHAT KIND OF JOB DO YOU HOLD? ARE YOU IN A RUT?

In view of these tremendous developments — occurring almost daily — it's time for you to STOP AND THINK! What kind of future is in store for you? Are you assured of advancement in a live and growing field? Can the field in which you are now working compare with television in newness, freshness, vitality? What about money? Can you keep up with your ordinary month to month bills — or are you falling behind — getting in deeper each year?

IF YOU CANNOT SATISFY YOURSELF WITH THE ANSWERS TO THESE QUESTIONS THEN NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO ACT! NOW IS THE TIME FOR YOU TO GET INTO TV!

NEW HOME TRAINING PLAN MAY BRING $400 A MONTH — FOR LIFE!

Through a startling and utterly different new method, more and more ambitious men are getting into the new industrial giant — television — in just a fraction of the time it used to take! (And remember, trained, qualified TV men are now earning $100 or more weekly.)

What's more, so streamlined is this new method YOU DO NOT HAVE TO GIVE UP YOUR PRESENT JOB in order to get into this field! You train at home in spare time! Not only that — the majority of "trainees" earn extra cash through spare-time work right in their own homes surprisingly soon after they start training!

RAY YOUNG, Newport, Kentucky, says: "Yes, I am doing service work now in my spare time and I have a lot of work and my plans are to open a repair shop to do any kind of a repair job that might come up and to give the best work and prices in town. I have made a profit in my work in spare time for the month of May—$185.75 —and June—$205.55."

V. M. THOMPSON, of Salina, Utah, says: "The town in which I live does not, at this time, have a single competent service shop for radios or TV sets. Even in a town of 2500 population, I would think there exists an opportunity to build up a good paying business . . . I have serviced two television sets and repaired nine radios so far in my career without too much trouble. I find that this experience is worth a great deal to me."

CLAUDE WENDEL, of Flint, Michigan, says: "This is a letter of praise. Never have I gained so much knowledge in so short a time as with you. I wish I had started 20 years ago, I don't think I would be working the 3rd shift for someone else now."

ONLY PLAN OF ITS KIND — SPONSORS AMBITIOUS MEN IN THEIR OWN BUSINESS!

If you are really ambitious and want to be your own boss, instead of calling some other man "boss," this is your BIG chance — perhaps the only chance of this kind you'll ever get — to actually own and operate your own TV and Radio repair shop, because this new plan helps put you in business — EVEN IF YOU DO NOT HAVE SUFFICIENT CAPITAL OF YOUR OWN!

ENTIRE PLAN OUTLINED IN FREE BOOKLET — FILL OUT COUPON BELOW TODAY!

This entire new plan is outlined in an illustrated brochure entitled, "How To Make Good In Radio-Television." This brochure can be read in 30 minutes, yet it has changed the lives of many in just 30 days! If you are between 18 and 35, and care anything at all about your future, and are interested in getting into Radio-Television in the shortest possible time, you are urged to send for the free brochure and information at once! Card of Thanks

We wish to thank all those who were very kind and thoughtful during our bereavement. The death of our beloved sister, Miss Grace Fulton. We thank those who sent flowers, assisted at the services, the minister, the choir, the pallbearers, those who loaned cars and expressed their sympathy in so many kind ways.

AN EDITORIAL

There's No Denying The Better Record

Just what benefits can be expected for Allegany County if the Democrats win the election tomorrow is hard to figure out. What did we ever get from the Democrats before? Part of the answer is bad roads, a high cost of living, unemployment, words and promises but no action, a move to close the State Teachers College at Frostburg.

That is not a very bright record for the Democrats to talk about. Well, you might ask, what have the Republicans done? An answer to that question would include these facts:

Federal, state and county taxes have been reduced; unemployment has dropped from the 3,800,000 in 1949 under President Truman to 2,700,000 in 1954 under President Eisenhower; Allegany County has the assurance of a great new industry partly obtained through Republican help; road improvement is underway with the promise of more to come; Frostburg State Teachers College is being enlarged and improved, as Governor McKeldin promised, instead of being abandoned; Miners Hospital at Frostburg is improved; $50,000, a sum 10 times as much as the Democrats authorized, has been spent on the recreation area near Lonaconing; coal dug from Maryland soil by Maryland miners is being used in Maryland institutions (except for the University of Maryland which was headed for so many years by "Curley" Byrd, the Democratic candidate for governor); and, best of all, the United States is not at war anywhere in the world.

Guaranteeing there will not be another war is impossible, of course, but America, under the guidance of President Eisenhower and his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, has just played the key role in solidifying the Western world's position with the conclusion of the London and Paris agreements.

Just last week, David Lawrence, a columnist whose articles appear regularly in The Cumberland News, pointed out the dangers inherent in a situation where the President is of one political party and the Congress of another.

The record he cited points up brilliantly the importance of giving President Eisenhower a Republican Congress, a Congress that will work with him for the benefit of the American people. May we suggest here that you not be misled nor misguided by Democratic claims that only they will support President Eisenhower.

Be cautious of such phony claims because the Democrats are preparing basically to sow the seeds for victory in the presidential election of 1956. That undoubtedly would mean a return to centralized government with socialistic tendencies instead of the Republican policy of a federal republic of sovereign states, and a belief in private enterprise.

When you vote tomorrow, mark your ballot for DeWitt S. Hyde, a young congressman with an outstanding record, and all of the other Republican candidates.

Mr. Hyde succeeded in enacting into law 11 of his own bills during the 83rd Congress, more than any other freshman congressman was able to achieve. His activities in committee and on the floor of the House also included work on legislation dealing with railroad retirement, control of communism, flood control in Allegany County, school construction in federally impacted areas, civil defense and promotion of industrial plants in labor surplus areas.

In these past weeks of the campaign, there has been a great effort on the part of the Democrats to tell us of the leadership and administrative ability of "Curley" Byrd, their candidate for governor. They cite his record as president of the University of Maryland and point to the growth under his guidance (it now faces the possibility of discreditation, which could be taken as an indication its growth has been only in bricks and mortar and not in the development of its students) and how strongly the Democrats stand behind him.

One illustration can burst this bubble. At the 1954 session of the General Assembly of Maryland, "Curley" Byrd was hooted off the floor of the House of Delegates by the membership, the majority of whom were members of his own Democratic party. Why was he hooted off the floor? Because the members of the House of Delegates objected to his lobbying and high pressure tactics.

We are confident you do not want a man like that for governor of Maryland. Remember these facts when you go to the polls tomorrow. Then mark your ballot for Theodore R. McKeldin, a great Republican governor who already has done so much for Western Maryland.

And we urge you, too, when you vote for Governor McKeldin and Congressman Hyde, that you also support the other candidates on the ticket, Edward D. E. Rollins for attorney general, and the Allegany County Republicans who are running for State Senate, House of Delegates, County Commissioners and Sheriff. They stand for good government.

Bank Money Sets Record In Bird Race

Bank Money, owned by the MacArthur Lofts of C. A. Smith and J. J. McAtee, flew the 300-mile course from Cincinnati, Ohio, in record time to win the Captain McAtee Special Bird Race of the Allegany Racing Pigeon Club Saturday.

Nine lofts entered 14 specially-banded young birds in the race. Birds were liberated in Cincinnati at 7:30 a. m. and encountered favorable winds along the way.

Silver Money of MacArthur Lofts was second with an average of 1465.95 yards per minute; Blue Bell of R. L. Spiker's Wing Ridge third with 1447.19; California Miss of Wing Ridge Lofts fourth with 1446.11; Coney Bill Jr. of Galen Beeman's Town View Lofts fifth with 1433.61; White Hope of Town View Lofts sixth with 1422.99.

Ants of M. M. Green's Excellent Lofts was seventh with 1390.57; Miss Opel of Excello Lofts eighth with 1354.71; Indiscretion of Dudley Shafer's Lost Loft ninth with 1339.99; Big Mack of J. H. and T. J. Sweitzer's Pear Alley Loft 10th with 1292.05; Blue Streak of Francis Stutcher's North End Loft 11th with 1287.28; Anniversary II of Joseph Luckiewicz's Lucky's Loft 12th with 1286.78.

Entries from North End Loft and George F. Marten's Clear View Loft finished 13th and 14th respectively, with speeds of 1261.95 and 1252.67 yards per minute.

The last race of the club's current young birds series will be a 300-mile race from Cincinnati, to be flown next Saturday.

Adelaide Case No Communist, Says Minister

Rev. H. Maunsell Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, yesterday came to the defense of a deceased woman who he said had been "smeared" in the course of the current New Jersey senatorial campaign.

The local clergyman said Dr. Adelaide Case, who was a member of the faculty of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., at the time he was a student there, was one of the finest Christian women he had ever met and "certainly no Communist."

The name Adelaide Case figured in the New Jersey campaign several weeks ago when the Newark Star Ledger reported that a former Communist, Bella V. Dodd, remembered Adelaide Case "as an active member of several Communist-front groups I helped organize."

Clifford Case, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate in New Jersey, has a sister named Adelaide Case. Case branded the story a case of mistaken identity.

"The Adelaide Case mentioned by Bella Dodd was not my sister, the New Jersey candidate asserted. 'The Adelaide Case Miss Dodd knew in 1943 was then a middle-aged woman. My sister Adelaide was only 31 at that time. I was then teaching physical education in Boston. She never heard of Miss Dodd or the activities described by Miss Dodd.'"

Rev. Richardson, in his sermon yesterday morning, said that the "smear" consequently was transferred to a dead woman but was never cleared up. He was illustrating a point in his sermon on the All Saints Day theme.

Dr. Case, whom he knew in his seminary days, had formerly taught at the Teachers College of Columbia University. Rev. Richardson said she was a splendid Christian woman and certainly had no Communist background.

The clergyman explained that Dr. Case was a strong pacifist and because of this view joined a number of social action organizations which later came to be called "Communist fronts."

He also pointed out that in those days the United States and Russia were aligned in their common opposition to Nazi Germany. Many of the greatest Americans in those days belonged to organizations since established as "Communist fronts," he pointed out, adding that President Eisenhower himself had belonged to some of them.

Former Resident Dies In Accident At Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. Woodrow W. Osbourne, about 36, a former resident of this city, was killed in an automobile accident in Norfolk, Va., last Friday, according to word received here.

Mrs. Osbourne lived in Cumberland about three years prior to 1947, when she went to Norfolk to make her home.

Survivors include her husband, Woodrow E. Osbourne, and a sister, Mrs. Chester Stewart, both of this city, and three children.

Local Man Attending Gunner's Mate School

Jack E. Miller, seaman, USN, 506 Springdale Street, is attending the Navy Gunner's Mate School at Bainbridge.

Before entering the Navy, he was graduated from Fort Ashby High School, and was employed by Almor Rug Company, Chester.

Piedmont Man Among Missing On Transport

J. Timothy Davis On Lost Plane

A Piedmont, W. Va., serviceman is among the 42 persons aboard a Navy transport plane which presumably is lost over the Atlantic Ocean.

He is John Timothy Davis, HM3, 24, son of William T. Davis, of East Harrison Street, owner and operator of a grocery store.

The plane, a four-motored super Constellation, departed from Patuxent River Naval Air Station in Maryland at 9:03 a. m. Saturday and was last heard from at 11 p. m. when about 300 miles off Cape May, N.J.

The craft, carrying 21 crew members and 21 passengers had been bound for Port Lyautey, Africa, and the Azores.

Davis, a Hospital Mate Third Class, is a graduate of St. Peter's High School, Westport, and enlisted for four years in the Navy. He completed his high school studies in 1949 and prior to enlisting in the service was employed at the A&P Supermarket in Westport.

He was home on a weekend leave about three weeks ago and was recently transferred to Patuxent after serving in Cuba for 23 months.

The family received a telegram from the Navy Department about 7 p. m. yesterday stating he was on the missing plane.

His mother was the late Anna (Jordan) Davis.

Thrown into the search were ships and planes of the Eastern Sea Frontier in New York, the Naval Air Base in Boston, and Coast Guard stations at New York City, Elizabeth, N.J., and Bermuda.

Also joining in the hunt were planes from Norfolk, Va., Boston, and other points on the Eastern seaboard, as well as from Newfoundland and the Azores.

The last contact with the missing transport came when it made a routine position report, and search operations began two hours later when there was no further word.

The Keyser District, Virginia Conference fall rally institute will be held tomorrow in Bethany Evangelical United Brethren Church, beginning at 2:30. Rev. Leslie O. Shirley, missionary to Sierra Leone, West Africa, will be the speaker.

Devotions will be led by Mrs. John E. Oliver, branch president. Methods of bringing the work before the groups will be discussed by Mrs. E. E. Miller, and conference interests, by ministers and laymen.

A fellowship supper will be held at 6 o'clock with the members of the host church bringing dishes of hot food.

The missionary talk, special music by the host church and a report on the World Council of Churches by Rev. Millard R. Floyd, will feature the evening session, beginning at 7:30.

South End Checks Local Home Blaze

South End firemen yesterday morning answered a call at 617 Brookfield Avenue when a joist in the first floor ignited from smoldering ashes from a fireplace.

The ashes, raked into a hole leading to the cellar from the fireplace, smoldered and ignited the joist. Little damage was reported.

Today's Sermonette

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday at Davis Memorial Methodist Church by the pastor, Rev. Karl L. Crowe. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

Positive Living

By REV. KARL L. CROWE

"Everyone may and can live abundantly," said Dr. E. Stanley Jones. I would like to put it this way, "Everyone can live a positive Christian life."

Many of our Christian leaders of today are concerned about the negative lives many professing Christians are living. They have instigated evangelistic missions and spiritual life missions in an attempt to awaken people to the abundant life. We read in John 10:10 that Jesus said, "I am come that ye might have life and have it more abundantly."

Then what is this positive or abundant life? First, let us ask, "What is negative living?" The person who does not put God first in his life is living a negative life. Jesus tells us to seek first the Kingdom of God. Rather than putting God first many are only giving Him the rags or remnants of life.

Another aspect of the negative life is the lack of prayer. There are three ways in which man gets what he wants and needs: by thought, by work, and by prayer. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale thinks that the elimination of the prayer factor from man's experience is a tragic omission. It compels us to carry the entire weight and burden of life.

Another aspect of the negative life is the lack of consecration and temperance. This being World Wide Temperance Sunday it ought to be pointed out that Christians must be very careful about any habit that ruins society, physical bodies, and spiritual souls. Total abstinence from alcoholic beverages and other harmful habits is essential if one is to live the abundant life.

To live the positive life one must be his whole self. Jesus tried to show His disciples the uselessness of worry. God was able to take care of them. The Christian life is a life of faith and trust. Another aspect of the positive life is prayer. Jesus said, "Ask and ye shall receive." The man who kept contemplating suicide did not have rest until he found the results of prayer in his own life. He found out the value of real living. Opposition to the wicked forces of our day will help to lead one in the positive life. We want to make our society better. This can be done as we register our opposition of those who try to get the people to become temperate.

The last aspect that I shall bring is the completely dedicated life as it relates to positive Christian living. One needs to be dedicated completely to Christ in order to have fellowship with God.

Honored For Mission Work

Mrs. Carrie Kephart Steiner (center), is presented a gift by Mrs. Ethel Northcraft in behalf of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, where Mrs. Steiner has been active in missionary work for several decades. Looking on is Mrs. James Orr, who was general chairman of the meeting at which Mrs. Steiner was honored. Although now over 90, Mrs. Steiner is still active in mission work for the church and for the Mountain Conference. For the past 50 years, she has been secretary of the Mame Kephart Mission Circle, named for her late sister.

First Snowfall Hits Tri-State As Mercury Drops

Communities of the mountainous areas of nearby Garrett County and Tucker County, W. Va., had a taste of early winter snow over the weekend but locally only a few flurries fell.

And the temperatures were below freezing in the surrounding area as "Old Man Winter" gave a preview of what to expect in the line of weather.

The icebox of the district seemed to be Elkins, W. Va., where the mercury was registered at 26 degrees last night around 9 o'clock. A similar reading was noted at Deal, Pa., according to a spokesman for the Western Maryland Railway Company.

Here in Cumberland the downtown unofficial temperature at 9 p. m. was 40 degrees. Along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Altamont and Terra Alta the temperature was 28 degrees about 9 p. m. and at least a half inch of snow was on the ground at those points, with flurries prevailing.

State Police at LaVale reported that snow was falling at Grantsville, although the highways were clear. A light snow was reported from Kitzmiller and heavier snow was noted at Davis and Parsons in West Virginia.

Some flurries were reported in the Tri-Towns area and along Georges Creek over the weekend. Forecast for today is some light rain or wet snow in the east and central portion of the state.

The official high temperature here yesterday was 45 degrees with a low reading of 32 degrees. At 7:30 p. m. yesterday the mercury stood at 34 degrees and humidity at 6 p. m. was 75 per cent.

Rev. LeFev To Speak

Rev. Charles LeFev, Hagers-town, former pastor of Grace Methodist Church here, will speak on "Dislocated Bones" at the Lions Club luncheon-meeting Wednesday at 12:15 p. m. in the Green Room of Central YMCA.

Committee For Handicapped Meeting Slated This Week

This week the chairman and members of the Allegany County Committee to Promote Employment of the Physically Handicapped will meet at a luncheon in the Fort Cumberland Hotel to discuss the selection of an outstanding employer employing a handicapped worker, and also to name a handicapped individual who has successfully overcome the handicap.

Recommendations, according to David Kauffman, chairman, will be submitted to the Governor's Committee and awards will be given in Baltimore next month during a meeting of that committee.

J. Leo Delaney, counselor of the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, yesterday reminded high school students of the 1955 Essay Contest now in progress with a top prize of a four-year scholarship to the University of Maryland and a $100 Savings Bond to the eleventh or twelfth-year student submitting the winning entry.

Deadline for the contest is December 15 and the title of the essay will be "A Decade of Progress in Employing the Handicapped." Students of all public, private and parochial high schools are eligible. Delaney pointed out. Full information may be obtained at the Cumberland Free Public Library or at the Vocational Rehabilitation office in the County Building on Union Street.

Other prizes will be awarded, with the winner of the national contest receiving $1,000. Members of the county committee are Francis A. Kenney, Harry Nelson, William B. Orndorff, Edward Rider and Charles See.

Young Woman Dies In Crash Near Grantsville

A 21-year-old girl was killed instantly in a motor accident early yesterday morning about five miles south of Grantsville on the New Germany Road off Route 40.

Authorities identified her as Miss Margaret Sue Loner of Knapps Meadow, near Lonaconing, an employee of the Perfection Garment Company of Keyser, W. Va.

Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, medical examiner in Garrett County, said death was due to crushing injuries to the left chest wall, right thigh injuries and a fracture of the basal portion of the skull.

Miss Miller was pinned under the left door of a car driven by Kenneth Owen Crowe, 24, of RD 2, Grantsville.

Crowe, who is being held in Garrett County Jail, Oakland, for questioning today at the office of State's Attorney W. D. Stover, escaped serious injury but sustained minor lacerations, according to Dr. Baumgartner.

Both occupants of the car were thrown from the vehicle in the mishap.

Trooper Blair Buckle of the Maryland State Police, stationed at Grantsville, quoted the driver as saying a couple of deer ran across the highway and that as he swerved to avoid hitting the animals the car went out of control, hit an embankment and upset.

The mishap occurred about 3:30 a. m. yesterday, police said.

Miss Miller, who attended Central High School, is survived by her parents, Edward and Leah (Coleman) Miller; two brothers, Edward Miller, Pontiac, Mich.; William Miller of Pennsylvania; four sisters, Mrs. Jessie Miller, Westport; Mrs. James Gould, Aliquippa, Pa.; Mrs. Albert Thielcke, Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Walter Snell, Washington.

The body will be at the residence at Knapps Meadow this evening.

Shrimp Feast Will Wind Up GOP Campaign

Sen. Beall To Be Host At Lonaconing Rally

The Republican Party of Allegany County will wind up its 1954 campaign in Lonaconing tonight with a big shrimp feast sponsored by United States Senator J. Glenn Beall.

The rally, the biggest one to be held in the current campaign, will be held at 8 p. m. in the Lonaconing Republican Club, with Senator Beall as toastmaster.

Principal speaker will be Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde, who will be making his final appeal to the voters of Allegany County in the GOP stronghold.

Rep. Hyde was elected in 1952 with a majority of 25,553, polling 94,603 votes to the 69,050 gained by his Democratic opponent, Stella B. Werner. Allegany County alone provided 3,820 of his majority.

James S. Getty, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, will be master of ceremonies.

All Republican candidates, members of the Republican State Central Committee and top GOP officials of this area will join in the rally.

Honored will be Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, who served as GOP campaign chairman.

Predicts GOP Victory

Getty said last night he feels "confident" that Allegany County voters will elect the entire Republican slate on Tuesday.

He predicted that Rep. Hyde will be re-elected with a majority of 8,000 votes in the sixth Congressional District and that Governor Theodore R. McKeldin will win by 50,000 votes in Maryland.

The Allegany County GOP candidates, he predicted, will be favored by the voters "down the line."

Getty said there has been a "definite trend" toward the Republican candidates during the past 10 days, and cited support of Gov. McKeldin by Baltimore area AFL Teamsters and the switch of several Garment Workers locals from Byrd to McKeldin. He said GOP leaders feel they will get their "fair share" of labor votes Tuesday.

Tonight's Lonaconing rally will be one of 15 which have been held in the county during the past two weeks in preparation for the off-year election.

Backing up the speechmaking has been another campaign designed to get out the vote on Tuesday in each of the county's 91 polling places.

Getty said party leaders, citing a 5,605 registration majority, are confident of victory if all voters go to the polls.

GOP leaders reported the "telephone-your-neighbor" campaign started Saturday by President Eisenhower has spread to Allegany County.

They said the President hit the nail on the head when he said, "if everyone votes, we're in."

Annual Safety Week Planned

Annual Safety Week in Allegany County will be sponsored November 14 to 20 inclusive, by the Department of Safety of the State Industrial Accident Commission.

Designed to focus attention on needless human suffering, waste of lives and damaged property due to preventable accidents, a full program is being prepared, said Lynn C. Walker, safety supervisor.

The Western Maryland Safety Council plans to present speakers before numerous groups and to provide films, news releases and radio broadcasts in the annual observance.

Joseph A. Haller of the Department of Safety of Maryland has issued an appeal for full cooperation.

Red Cross Blood Collections Planned

Red Cross blood collections will be held today in Lonaconing and tomorrow in Cumberland.

Officials have issued calls for volunteers on each day of the blood collection, pointing out that election activities may cut down the number of donors.

A quota of 150 pints of blood has been set for both Lonaconing and Cumberland.

The blood collection unit will be in Grantsville on Wednesday.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 31 (AP)—The secretary of state's office has released up-to-date figures on Maryland's registered voters for the general election, showing a total of 1,093,087 eligible to cast ballots.

The traditional 2-1 edge held by the democrats still shows on the books, with 313,360 republicans registered compared with 755,479 democrats. Other registrations total 24,248.

Baltimore City has by far the greatest number of voters of any political subdivision in the state, with 383,861 registered there. The city and neighboring Baltimore county, with its 166,052, have between them more registered voters than the state's other 22 counties combined.

Farmers Are Urged To Aid In Census

The farm census scheduled to get under way in Maryland on November 8 has already been in progress for about a month in some states, according to Robert W. Burgess, director of Census, and in some states has hit a snag. Burgess has sent a telegram to Andrew J. Feeney, information specialist at the Agriculture and Home Economics departments of the University of Maryland, urging cooperation of farmers.

The telegram points out that reports from areas where the 1954 Census of Agriculture is in progress show that farmers have not cooperated as fully as in 1950 with the request to fill out and have ready their questionnaires when the census taker arrives to collect information.

As a consequence, Burgess points out, the progress of the census is impeded, the work of the census taker is made more difficult and the cost of taking the census is increased greatly.

Burgess appeals to all farmers, in the interest of keeping the cost of the census down to the lowest possible expenditure of tax money, to complete their forms as far as possible and have them ready when the census taker calls.

AN EDITORIAL

There's No Denying The Better Record

Just what benefits can be expected for Allegany County if the Democrats win the election tomorrow is hard to figure out.

What did we ever get from the Democrats before? Part of the answer is bad roads, a high cost of living, unemployment, words and promises but no action, a move to close the State Teachers College at Frostburg.

That is not a very bright record for the Democrats to talk about. Well, you might ask, what have the Republicans done? An answer to that question would include these facts:

Federal, state and county taxes have been reduced; unemployment has dropped from the 3,800,000 in 1949 under President Truman to 2,700,000 in 1954 under President Eisenhower; Allegany County has the assurance of a great new industry partly obtained through Republican help; road improvement is underway with the promise of more to come; Frostburg State Teachers College is being enlarged and improved, as Governor McKeldin promised, instead of being abandoned; Miners Hospital at Frostburg is improved; $50,000, a sum 10 times as much as the Democrats authorized, has been spent on the recreation area near Lonaconing; coal dug from Maryland soil by Maryland miners is being used in Maryland institutions (except for the University of Maryland which was headed for so many years by "Curley" Byrd, the Democratic candidate for governor); and, best of all, the United States is not at war anywhere in the world.

Guaranteeing there will not be another war is impossible, of course, but America, under the guidance of President Eisenhower and his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, has just played the key role in solidifying the Western world's position with the conclusion of the London and Paris agreements.

Just last week, David Lawrence, a columnist whose articles appear regularly in The Cumberland News, pointed out the dangers inherent in a situation where the President is of one political party and the Congress of another.

The record he cited points up brilliantly the importance of giving President Eisenhower a Republican Congress, a Congress that will work with him for the benefit of the American people. May we suggest here that you not be misled nor misguided by Democratic claims that only they will support President Eisenhower.

Be cautious of such phony claims because the Democrats are preparing basically to sow the seeds for victory in the presidential election of 1956. That undoubtedly would mean a return to centralized government with socialist tendencies instead of the Republican policy of a federal republic of sovereign states, and a belief in private enterprise.

When you vote tomorrow, mark your ballot for DeWitt S. Hyde, a young congressman with an outstanding record, and all of the other Republican candidates.

Mr. Hyde succeeded in enacting into law 11 of his own bills during the 83rd Congress, more than any other freshman congressman was able to achieve. His activities in committee and on the floor of the House also included work on legislation dealing with railroad retirement, control of communism, flood control in Allegany County, school construction in federally impacted areas, civil defense and promotion of industrial plants in labor surplus areas.

In these past weeks of the campaign, there has been a great effort on the part of the Democrats to tell us of the leadership and administrative ability of "Curley" Byrd, their candidate for governor. They cite his record as president of the University of Maryland and point to the growth under his guidance of it now faces the possibility of discreditation, which could be taken as an indication its growth has been only in bricks and mortar and not in the development of its students and how strongly the Democrats stand behind him.

One illustration can burst this bubble. At the 1954 session of the General Assembly of Maryland, "Curley" Byrd was hoisted off the floor of the House of Delegates by the membership, the majority of whom were members of his own Democratic party. Why was he hoisted off the floor? Because the members of the House of Delegates objected to his lobbying and high pressure tactics.

We are confident you do not want a man like that for governor of Maryland. Remember these facts when you go to the polls tomorrow. Then mark your ballot for Theodore R. McKeldin, a great Republican governor who already has done so much for Western Maryland.

And we urge you, too, when you vote for Governor McKeldin and Congressman Hyde, that you also support the other candidates on the ticket, Edward D. E. Rollins for attorney general, and the Allegany County Republicans who are running for State Senate, House of Delegates, County Commissioners and Sheriff. They stand for good government.

Adelaide Case No Communist, Says Minister

Rev. H. Maunsell Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, yesterday came to the defense of a deceased woman who he said had been "smeared" in the course of the current New Jersey senatorial campaign.

The local clergyman said Dr. Adelaide Case, who was a member of the faculty of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., at the time he was a student there, was one of the finest Christian women he had ever met and "certainly no Communist." She died in 1948.

The name Adelaide Case figured in the New Jersey campaign several weeks ago when the Newark Star Ledger reported that a former Communist, Bella V. Dodd, remembered Adelaide Case "as an active member of several Communist-front groups I helped organize."

Clifford Case, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate in New Jersey, has a sister named Adelaide Case. Case branded the story a case of mistaken identity.

"The Adelaide Case mentioned by Bella Dodd was not my sister, the New Jersey candidate asserted. 'The Adelaide Case Miss Dodd knew in 1943 was then a middle-aged woman... my sister Adelaide was only 31 at that time... was then teaching physical education in Boston... She never heard of Miss Dodd or the activities described by Miss Dodd.'"

Rev. Richardson, in his sermon yesterday morning, said that the "smeared" consequently was transferred to a dead woman but was never cleared up. He was illustrating a point in his sermon on the All Saints Day theme.

Dr. Case, whom he knew in his seminary days, had formerly taught at the Teachers College of Columbia University. Rev. Richardson said she was a splendid Christian woman and certainly had no Communist background.

The clergyman explained that Dr. Case was a strong pacifist and because of this view joined a number of social action organizations which later came to be called "Communist fronts."

He also pointed out that in those days the United States and Russia were aligned in their common opposition to Nazi Germany. Many of the greatest Americans in those days belonged to organizations since established as "Communist fronts," he pointed out, adding that President Eisenhower himself had belonged to some of them.

Piedmont Man Among Missing On Transport

J. Timothy Davis On Lost Plane

A Piedmont, W. Va., serviceman is among the 42 persons aboard a Navy transport plane which presumably is lost over the Atlantic Ocean.

He is John Timothy Davis, HM3, 24, son of William T. Davis, of East Harrison Street, owner and operator of a grocery store.

The plane, a four-motored super Constellation, departed from Patuxent River Naval Air Station in Maryland at 9:03 a. m. Saturday and was last heard from at 11 p. m. when about 300 miles off Cape May, N. J.

The craft, carrying 21 crew members and 21 passengers had been bound for Port Lyautey, Africa, and the Azores.

Davis, a Hospital Mate Third Class, is a graduate of St. Peter's High School, Westernport, and enlisted for four years in the Navy. He completed his high school studies in 1949 and prior to enlisting in the service was employed at the A&P Supermarket in Westernport.

He was home on a weekend leave about three weeks ago and was recently transferred to Patuxent after serving in Cuba for 23 months.

The family received a telegram from the Navy Department about 7 p. m. yesterday stating he was on the missing plane.

His mother was the late Anna (Jordan) Davis.

Thrown into the search were ships and planes of the Eastern Sea Frontier in New York, the Naval Air Base in Boston, and Coast Guard stations at New York City, Elizabeth, N. J., and Bermuda.

Also joining in the hunt were planes from Norfolk, Va., Boston, and other points on the Eastern seaboard, as well as from Newfoundland and the Azores.

The last contact with the missing transport came when it made a routine position report, and search operations began two hours later when there was no further word.

Positive Living

By REV. KARL L. CROWE

"Everyone may and can live abundantly," said Dr. E. Stanley Jones. I would like to put it this way, "Everyone can live a positive Christian life."

Many of our Christian leaders of today are concerned about the negative lives many professing Christians are living. They have instigated evangelistic missions and spiritual life missions in an attempt to awaken people to the abundant life. We read in John 10:10 that Jesus said, "I came that ye might have life and have it more abundantly."

Then what is this positive or abundant life? First, let us ask, "What is negative living?" The person who does not put God first in his life is living a negative life. Jesus tells us to seek first the Kingdom of God. Rather than putting God first many are only giving Him the rags or remnants of life.

Another aspect of the negative life is the lack of prayer. There are three ways in which man gets what he wants and needs: by thought, by work, and by prayer. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale thinks that the elimination of the prayer factor from man's experience is a tragic omission. It compels us to carry the entire weight and burden of life.

Another aspect of the negative life is the lack of consecration and temperance. This being World Wide Temperance Sunday it ought to be pointed out that Christians must be very careful about any habit that ruins society, physical bodies, and spiritual souls. Total

Communities of the mountainous areas of nearby Garrett County and Tucker County, W. Va. had a taste of early winter snow over the weekend but locally only a few flurries fell.

And the temperatures were below freezing in the surrounding area as "Ole Man Winter" gave a preview of what to expect in the line of weather.

The icebox of the district seemed to be Elkins, W. Va., where the mercury was registered at 26 degrees last night around 9 o'clock. A similar reading was noted at Deal, Pa., according to a spokesman for the Western Maryland Railway Company.

Here in Cumberland the downtown unofficial temperature at 9 p. m. was 40 degrees. Along the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Altamont and Terra Alta the temperature was 28 degrees about 9 p. m. and at least a half inch of snow was on the ground at those points, with flurries prevailing.

State Police at LaVale reported that snow was falling at Grantsville, although the highways were clear. A light snow was reported from Kittimiller and heavier snow was noted at Davis and Parsons in West Virginia.

Some flurries were reported in the Tri-Towns area and along Georges Creek over the weekend. Forecast for today is some light rain or wet snow in the east and central portion of the state.

The official high temperature here yesterday was 45 degrees with a low reading of 32 degrees. At 7:30 p. m. yesterday the mercury stood at 34 degrees and humidity at 6 p. m. was 75 per cent.

Committee For Handicapped Meeting Slated This Week

This week the chairman and members of the Allegany County Committee to Promote Employment of the Physically Handicapped will meet at a luncheon in the Fort Cumberland Hotel to discuss the selection of an outstanding employer employing a handicapped worker, and also to name a handicapped individual who has successfully overcome the handicap.

Recommendations, according to David Kauffman, chairman, will be submitted to the Governor's Committee and awards will be given in Baltimore next month during a meeting of that committee.

J. Leo Delaney, counselor of the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation, yesterday reminded high school students of the 1955 Essay Contest now in progress with a top prize of a four-year scholarship to the University of Maryland and a $100 Savings Bond to the eleventh or twelfth-year student submitting the winning entry.

Deadline for the contest is December 15 and the title of the essay will be "A Decade of Progress in Employing the Handicapped." Students of all public, private and parochial high schools are eligible, Delaney pointed out. Full information may be obtained at the Cumberland Free Public Library or at the Vocational Rehabilitation office in the County Building on Union Street.

Young Woman Dies In Crash Near Grantsville

A 21-year-old girl was killed instantly in a motor accident early yesterday morning about five miles south of Grantsville on the New Germany Road off Route 40.

Authorities identified her as Miss Margaret Sue Miller of Knapps Meadow, near Lonaconing, an employee of the Perfection Garment Company of Keyser, W. Va.

Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, medical examiner in Garrett County, said death was due to crushing injuries to the left chest wall, right thigh injuries and a fracture of the basal portion of the skull.

Miss Miller was pinned under the left door of a car driven by Kenneth Owen Crowe, 24, of RD 2, Grantsville.

Crowe, who is being held in Garrett County Jail, Oakland, for questioning today at the office of State's Attorney W. D. Stover, escaped serious injury but sustained minor lacerations, according to Dr. Baumgartner.

Both occupants of the car were thrown from the vehicle in the mishap.

Trooper Blair Buckle of the Maryland State Police, stationed at Grantsville, quoted the driver as saying a couple of deer ran across the highway and that as he swerved to avoid hitting the animals the car went out of control, hit an embankment and upset.

The mishap occurred about 3:30 a. m. yesterday, police said.

Miss Miller, who attended Central High School, is survived by her parents, Edward and Leah (Coleman) Miller; two brothers, Edward Miller, Pontiac, Mich.; William Miller of Pennsylvania; four sisters, Mrs. Jessie Miller, West-ernport; Mrs. James Gould, Alliquippa, Pa.; Mrs. Albert Thielcke, Rochester, N. Y., and Mrs. Walter Snell, Washington.

The body will be at the residence at Knapps Meadow this evening.

Segregation Big Campaign Issue In Baltimore

By LOU PANOS

BALTIMORE, Oct. 31 (AP) — "It's the most peculiar campaign I've ever seen."

The speaker was an old-timer in Baltimore politics. His party doesn't matter because the same view has been expressed by workers from top to bottom in both the Republican and Democratic camps.

Both also usually give the same explanation—segregation. Until the question of segregation in schools was raised, each side had picked its target and for the campaign leading up to Tuesday's general election was blasting away at it.

Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, trying to become the first Republican governor ever re-elected in this state, concentrated his fire on the record of Democrat H. C. Byrd as president of the University of Maryland.

Byrd, making his first political race after resigning from his post at the university, criticized "waste, favoritism and extravagance" in the Republican state administration.

But then the segregation issue was injected into the line of fire, distracting the marksmen from time to time.

Also distracted, apparently, are many of their respective followers. It is accepted as a fact in both camps that some voters will cross party lines because two Democratic candidates—Edward Turner in the 1st Congressional District and State Sen. George A. Della in Baltimore's 6th Legislative District—have taken a stand in favor of continued segregation in schools.

Despite this added complexity of the top-level race, however, behind-the-scenes figures in both camps agree that three congressional contests within Baltimore City will not be so obviously affected by the segregation issue.

Democrat Edward A. Garmatz, unopposed by any Republican in the 3rd District, faces the only Progressive Party challenger for a major office, Milton Bates.

Reps. George H. Fallon of the 4th and Samuel N. Friedel of the 7th, the other two Democrats in the State's seven-member delegation to the House, both face more spirited opposition than Republican congressional candidates usually offer in the city, where Democrats hold an edge of 297,742 to 77,290.

Two Newcomers

Fallon's challenger is Arthur W. Sherwood, 27-year-old attorney, and Friedel's is Edward C. Dukehart, real estate broker and former Air Force navigation instructor. Neither Sherwood nor Dukehart has run for office before.

One of the districts being watched closely as a possible indicator of national trends is the 2nd, where Republican Rep. "James P. S. Devereux is running for a third term.

Facing him is William P. Bolton, the man Devereux defeated in 1950.

Republican candidates in the 2nd, 4th and 7th districts have hewed closely to the national GOP plan of asking that they be sent to Washington to help complete the Eisenhower legislative program.

Shrimp Feast Will Wind Up GOP Campaign

Sen. Beall To Be Host At Lonaconing Rally

The Republican Party of Allegany County will wind up its 1954 campaign in Lonaconing tonight with a big shrimp feed sponsored by United States Senator J. Glenn Beall.

The rally, the biggest one to be held in the current campaign, will be held at 8 p. m. in the Lonaconing Republican Club, with Senator Beall as toastmaster.

Principal speaker will be Rep. DeWitt S. Hyde, who will be making his final appeal to the voters of Allegany County in the GOP stronghold.

Rep. Hyde was elected in 1952 with a majority of 25,553, polling 94,603 votes to the 69,050 gained by his Democratic opponent, Stella B. Werner. Allegany County alone provided 3,820 of his majority.

James S. Getty, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, will be master of ceremonies.

All Republican candidates, members of the Republican State Central Committee and top GOP officials of this area will join in the rally.

Honored will be Mrs. Lucile W. Roeder, who served as GOP campaign chairman.

Predicts GOP Victory

Getty said last night he feels "confident" that Allegany County voters will elect the entire Republican slate on Tuesday.

He predicted that Rep. Hyde will be re-elected with a majority of 8,000 votes in the sixth Congressional District and that Governor Theodore R. McKeldin will win by 50,000 votes in Maryland.
